Smiles Come Back
Bad News for Karl Marx
Why Not Keep Our Gold?
Fly, Only, When Birds Fly

—By Arthur Brisbane—

ON TUESDAY wage reductions were announced by big corporations. Yesterday stocks went up in Wall Street, railroads were especially buoyant, important industrials cheerful and higher.

Smiles have blossomed in Wall Street ever since Monday, when it was discovered that Britain's suspension of the gold standard was really a good thing for the United States, as well as Britain.

Labor that objects to wage reductions may find some comfort in the fact that a 10 per cent deduction may mean before long a 100 per cent increase in general prosperity, with restoration of wages.

Big industrialists know that it is to their own interest to restore wages, and raise them even higher. Everybody knows now that PROSPERITY DEPENDS ON THE SURPLUS EARNINGS OF WORKERS AND THEIR ABILITY TO BUY WHAT THEY CREATE.

Those to whom the word "Russia" is anathema will learn with glee that Britain's gold action, believed to be an excellent thing for us, as well as for Britain, is expected to cost Russia about $25,000,000 a year through diminished exports. It will amuse our "best minds" when they realize that Britain's move away from gold, called by the ignorant "a blow to capitalism," will hurt communism and help capitalism. You can imagine Karl Marx and Lenin rolling over in their graves.

Bad boys in Wall Street are inclined to exult and say that Britain's depreciation from the gold standard is a sort of "triumph" for the United States.

We have the gold STANDARD and we have the GOLD. One plain-spoken "big operator" in Wall Street, changing suddenly from "bear" to "bull," said: "The news from England will relieve the world as lancing a boil relieves the owner of the boil."

Might it be wise for the United States, taking the advice of a financial writer quoted by Mr. Cyrus H. K. Curtis, to "loosen up," which means inflating the currency reasonably, putting out at least enough additional money to offset the five to eight hundred millions in currency supposed to be hidden away in mattresses, stockings and safe deposit vaults by the foolishly frightened?

And would it be a good thing for the government to say, "We have the gold and we intend to keep it, since it seems to exercise so much influence on the world's imagination? We don't know just how much it really amounts to, but even if it were only a financial rabbit foot, we don't intend to let it go. No gold shall leave the United States from now on. If other nations don't like our currency they need not take it."

An interesting load of Americans sailed on the Bremen last Tuesday. Chief Engineer Kettering, of General Motors, discussing flying accidents, said: "Men should fly only when the birds fly. They have been flying for many millions of years, and know. They do not fly at night, or in a fog, or in very heavy wind any longer than it takes them to land and stop flying."

W. S. Knudsen, also of General Motors, and president of the Chevrolet Company, on his way to inspect General Motors plants in Denmark, where he was born, in Sweden, Germany, etc., thinks the world is fairly cheerful.

He had just called on the able Swift brothers in Chicago, to thank them for ordering one thousand Chevrolet trucks at one time, and look over their plant.

He learned that in depression times people eat as much meat as ever, for the reason that they can't get along without it. But they eat less of the most costly meat.

One group of passengers interesting those that ask, "What is Russia doing?" included "Roxy," moving picture impresario, who will have charge of motion picture houses in New York's new "Rockefeller City," to cost $250,000,000. "Roxy," with five architects, interested in Rockefeller City, will meet in Berlin a special train sent from Moscow to show them new things in theater lighting and motion picture production that the Russians have developed, superior to our own work.

Who would have thought that?

It is charming to see Japan, politely drawing in her breath with Oriental politeness, saying to the League of Natiops, "You attend to your business and I shall attend to mine."

Brig.-Gen. Reilly, of the United States Reserve Corps,

Mineola, N. Y., Sept. 24—Mrs. Benjamin P. Collings was summoned from Stamford, Ct., today to view two men jailed here as suspects in the murder of her husband.

The suspects are Timothy J. Quinn, 43, of Astoria, former inmate of insane asylums, and Carl Newkirk, 28, of Manhattan.

Both are employed at a Welfare Island hospital, where they are room mates.

They answer the general description of the two "pirates" Collings' young widow says boarded their yacht in Long Island Sound on Sept. 9, murdered Collings and abducted her.

TO VIEW SUSPECTS

Both deny any knowledge of the crime, but Quinn admitted, police said, that he was in the vicinity of Northport, N. Y., two weeks ago, at the approximate time Collings was slain, and in the room jointly occupied by both suspects a mass of newspaper clippings concerning the murder were found.

Wage Cuts by Stock-Inflated Corporations Only Aggravate Depression, Says W. R. Hearst

SEVERAL of the greatest corporations in the United States have cut the salaries of their employes 10 per cent, and by so doing have contributed their utmost toward the aggravation of the depression and the accentuation of the injustice already inflicted upon the wage-earners of the country and the elements dependent on the welfare of these workers.

The immediate cause for this cut in wages to workers is the present difficulty that the corporations have in paying dividends on their stock, but the actual and elemental cause is the issuance by these corporations of more stock than they are capable of paying dividends on.

It may be taken as an axiomatic fact that if corporations issue stock to the limit of their capacity to pay dividends upon in good times, they will not be able to pay dividends upon it in bad times.

Periods of inflation and depression alternate and it is obvious that if you capitalize to the utmost on the crest of the wave of prosperity you will have to pass dividends on this watered stock in the trough of the wave of depression.

One of the fundamental causes of the present period of depression in the United States is over-speculation, plus over-capitalization. A number of inexcusable and unpardonable evil practices have been perpetrated upon the community.

First, advantage was taken of the speculative complex on the part of the public to unload upon the community an enormous amount of utterly worthless so-called securities.

This was pure and simple swindling of the Ponzi variety, and the perpetrators of these frauds have not gone to jail as Ponzi did simply because they operated upon a scale large enough and impressive enough to be considered respectable, and, second, because many of these great firms have been engaged in the business of swindling the public long enough to have the sanctity of custom and convention behind them.

These worthless stocks have depreciated to practically no value at all and the money of all the little speculators has been gathered into the pockets of the big promoters.

Another kind of inflation, while not criminal, is nevertheless entirely evil and wholly unjust, not only to the investing public, but to the laboring masses. This evil practice consists of the over-capitalization of a legitimate business.

The extensive invention of labor-saving machinery has in the last few years greatly decreased the cost of production and increased the profits of enterprise.

It is quite clearly evident that some part of the advantage of labor-saving machinery should go to the consumer in reduced prices for products, and some part of the advantage should go to the wage-earners in increased wages and shorter hours, and that under no standards of equity and national advantage should the capitalist class, meaning thereby the owners of enterprise and the employers of labor, absorb all the benefit of these increased profits.

But these owners and employers have not only absorbed practically all the benefits of increased profits created by labor-saving machinery and improvements in production, but they have devised a means of permanently depriving the working classes of their legitimate share in these benefits.

BEER VOTE BY STATES LEGION'S DEMAND

Ballot Shows 1008 for and 394 Against; Bay State Man Opens Debate

BULLETIN

Detroit, Sept. 24—A lawyer, who became one of the Southland's greatest orators after serving as a second lieutenant in France—Henry L. Stevens, Jr., of North Carolina—will be elected national commander of the American Legion.

Detroit, Sept. 24—The American Legion national convention today voted for a nation-wide prohibition referendum, amid a demonstration in which the dominant note was: "We want beer!"

The vote was 1,008 to 394.

The debate was on a resolution to ask Congress to submit the issue to the states, with the request that each state submit it to the voters. It was read by Dr. Neil D. Williams of Missouri, chairman of the resolutions committee.

Reversing the rulings of commanders of other years, Commander O'Neil ruled that the issue could properly come before the convention. He made the ruling as a point of order was raised in which it was maintained that the issue was political.

MINORITY IS FROZEN.

A minority report of the resolutions committee which declared that the Legion should not take a stand on the prohibition question, was read by Lloyd Kain of Nebraska. This was received by a demonstration that was decidedly unfriendly.

Norman C. MacDonald of Massachusetts opened the debate for the majority resolution. He declared that "American institutions are in danger" as a result of prohibition and that the Legion properly should assume leadership in efforts

THUG GETS $300 AT GUNPOINT

Assaulting one man and threatening another, a lone gunman escaped with $300 today from the office of the Columbia Theater, Washington st., South End.

He entered the theater office on the street floor, according to Edward Garrity, the manager.

"Stick 'em up and give me all the money! I'm here for business," Garrity quoted the gunman.

Garrity said he turned to the safe and was about to hand over the $300 when Ross Wade, janitor of the theater, entered.

Whirling, the gunman knocked Wade to the floor and flashed around again to keep Garrity covered.

He seized the money and, stepping over the prostrate form of Wade, escaped to the street, Garrity said.

Hastily placing the gun back in his pocket, the thug coolly walked to a black roadster and speeded away in the direction of South Boston.

WALL ST. CLOSE IS WEAK

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—The stock market fell back swiftly today in a secondary reaction of unusual severity which virtually cancelled yesterday's violent upswing.

The decline gained momentum after midday.

Such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, North American, Allied Chemical, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio and Atchison tumbled 6 to 15 points. The closing tone was weak. Rales were around three million shares.

The bond market continued to advance briskly against the trend in stocks during the morning, but eventually began to back up along with the share market.

The London and Paris stock markets continued their gains. Cotton here was strong, rising $1 a bale at the opening.

Foreign exchanges were highly unsettled, sterling being quoted as low as 21 cents. Scandinavian rates also weakened.

WOMAN SAVED IN MUD FLATS

Mrs. Philomena Bartalo, 68, of 494 Sumner st., East Boston, was rescued from the mud flats at the foot of Maverick st., near the airport, at low tide, early today, after she had leaped from an embankment there and attempted to wade to deep water.

Patrolman Joseph Fischer, on duty at the airport, saw her walking toward the embankment and became alarmed when she failed to return. He rushed down and dragged her to safety.

She was taken to the East Boston Relief Station, where it was found she was unharmed. She was later taken to her home by her son, Biaggio.

PAY CUTTING DISPLEASES HOOVER ADMINISTRATION

'HELL TO PAY' IF THEY CONTINUE, WARNS KLEIN

Labor Federation Head Claims Bad Faith on Part of Steel Companies

Washington, Sept. 24—Dissatisfaction in the Hoover administration over wage-cutting evidenced itself today despite continued reticence of most officials.

One high executive called the move in major industries another example of bad-thinking in business.

President Hoover kept his own views to himself. Like many others, he was keeping advised on the major happenings following the lowered-wage turn.

While most prominent officials declined to state their views even privately, others were not as backward. One, for example, showed impatience with the prolonged wage policy of some corporations. He likened their action to punching a hole through a solid bottom, thus forcing construction of a new foundation at a lower level.

Yet he was optimistic in one respect. He doubted that small industries generally would follow the example set by the leaders.

"LITTLE FELLOWS" GAIN

His contention was that the little companies, forced to scratch hard for business during the last year, had obtained a high degree of efficiency in plant and sales organizations and now are in position to meet the big fellows on better than even terms.

One utterance that attracted serious attention was the denunciatory statement by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, charging the steel corporations with breaking faith and adopting an unsound, unjust policy.

The labor leader quoted a statement made by Julius Klein, assistant Secretary of Commerce, who said:

"General wage reductions will spell disaster. If they come there will be hell to pay throughout the United States."

This, said Green, is a logical and sound conclusion.

OTHER DANGERS LOOM

President Hoover's chief concern focuses upon the maintenance of American living standards, almost certain to be affected by a general wage lowering.

It is frankly anticipated in Washington that the railroads will be the next to follow the lower wage trend.

The carriers now have pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission a petition for a 15 per cent horizontal increase in rates, which very few anticipate is going to be granted. Unless it is granted, the expectation prevails throughout governmental circles that the railroads are going to slash the wages of ordinary labor.

CUT SEEMS INEVITABLE.

Even if the commission grants a 5 per cent increase in rates, which many believe possible, the feeling is prevalent that it will not deter the carriers from reducing their operating expenses via the wage cut route.

Railroad labor is pretty thoroughly organized and conscious of its power. In any event, it is not as helpless as labor in the steel industries, despite prodigious efforts by the A. F. of L. has remained largely unorganized and thus unable to defend itself by concerted action.

It was to the President's action in November, 1920, of securing anti-wage lowering pledges from industrial leaders that Green referred in his charge that the steel industry had violated its given word.

HARDEST BLOW OF ALL

"No greater blow than this," Green said, "has yet been struck against the forces which have been and are now seeking to bring about a return of prosperity."

The labor chieftain maintained that the wage reducing corporations were the beneficiaries of a high protective tariff. This protection, he said, was granted on the theory that it was necessary in upholding the American wage standard.

"It seems reasonable," he concluded, "that since they accepted this favor and reduced wages, the tariff schedule should be reduced and the special favors accorded them by the American government withdrawn."

Green sided with some of the government economists. If, as stated, the 10 per cent reduction will save the United States Steel Corp. $20,000,000, he said, it will likewise mean the employes of the concern will spend that much less for goods.

In contrast, Green contended, labor has kept the pledge given at the same White House conference of industrial and labor leaders in 1929. The promise was that it would initiate no new moves for increases in wages.

FACTS ON BEER GATHERED BY SEC. HYDE

Agricultural Head Says Data Was Not Asked for by Pres. Hoover

Washington, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Agricultural Department is investigating to ascertain the possible effects of the legalization of beer on the farmer.

Secretary Hyde revealed this fact today in saying many requests for information on this subject have reached his office. The secretary specified that none of these requests had come from the White House.

Asked if the beer information would be submitted to President Hoover, Hyde said it might reach him through the press.

Hyde said he had instructed for some time to initiate such an investigation to determine exactly the number of farmers who might be employed raising hops, barley and similar ingredients, should the making of real beer become legal.

He intends to speed up this inquiry.

One newspaperman told Sec. Hyde that he had been listed in the press as being "on the right side of the question.

"What is the right side?" asked Hyde.

"That was interpreted as being the liberal side," was the answer.

"What!" he exclaimed. "And me a Methodist?"

Momentarily, the result of the disclosure of the investigation was to stir up one of Washington's most active nests of rumors. These reports always take a multitude of forms.

HOOVER IS SILENT.

One, of course, is that Mr. Hoover, under the urging of the modificationists, labor leaders and many other elements, will recommend a change to Congress. Another is that he is collecting evidence on which to turn down the petitions who contend beer-making would increase employment.

Wage Cuts by Stock-Inflated Corporations Only Aggravate Depression, Says W. R. Hearst

The method is to capitalize industry to the full extent of its increased profits. That is to say, if a business making 8 per cent has by labor-saving machinery and other improvements in production increased its profits to 25 per cent, this business, instead of allowing labor participation in the increased profits, proceeds to triple its capitalization and thereby to reduce profits again to 8 per cent per share on account of the threefold stock issue.

Furthermore, if this high capitalization is made at a time of high prosperity, the dividends on that over-capitalization cannot be paid adequately, if at all, in periods of depression.

As a consequence, not only has the working man been deprived of his share of the benefits of modern methods and machinery, but if dividends are not maintained on the inflated securities, the investor is deprived of his just return on his investment.

Now comes the "last scene of all, that ends this strange eventful history." The over-capitalized stock depreciates and earnings decrease and finally dividends are passed.

AND THEN the working people, who were not allowed to participate in the advantages of large earnings, are made to participate in the disadvantages due to over-capitalization and maladministration.

So WAGES ARE CUT, thus placing the whole burden of over-speculation, over-capitalization, maladministration and the resultant depression on the already strained backs of an element which was in no way responsible for these evil conditions.

But not only does the working man suffer from this injustice, but so do the shops where he spends his money and so do the factories from which the shops buy their goods to sell to the masses, and so do the farms and the mines which produce the raw material to supply the factories. And so do all the workers in shops and factories and mines and farms.

Mr. Swope, of the General Electric Company, has lately evolved a remedy for depression which remedies nothing. It is not a cure. It is at best a palliative. It does not assume to prevent a calamity. It merely endeavors to minimize the evils of the calamity.

It merely informs you how you may suffer the least of discomfort and inconvenience when the Empire State Building falls upon you. It does not provide any effective means to prevent the Empire State Building from falling on you.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of palliative, especially when the palliative shrewdly contains added latitude, laxity and license for the very corporations which are already responsible for many of the evils which created the depression to repeat the evils on a greater scale and precipitate another and greater depression.

Our fine American scientists who accomplished their historic triumph over yellow fever did not discover merely how to endure yellow fever, or even how eventually to recover from yellow fever after you once had it. They discovered how to prevent yellow fever.

What scientific finance must discover now is not merely how to endure depression and not merely how eventually to get over each depression by the loss of most of one's peace of mind and most of one's property, and by the payment of high taxes and the practice of severe economies.

The thing for scientific American finance to discover, and for scientific statesmanship to provide, is how to PREVENT depressions.

And that means how to prevent the plunder of the public through over-speculation and through over-capitalization.

And it means, too, a system to provide the working masses with proper participation in increased profits due to labor saving machinery and modern methods. And that means shorter hours as well as better wages for the workers.

And that means more joy of life for the masses of the people and greater consuming power in the community and greater prosperity for the shops and the factories and the mines and the farms.

It means a better and juster distribution of wealth, and a higher standard of living and more health and happiness for every human being in the nation.

AND THE WHOLE OBJECT OF SOCIETY AND CIVILIZATION IS TO ACCOMPLISH JUST THESE BENEFITS.

We do not want Communism in this country, and what is more, we do not intend to have it, but the way to prevent Communism is to make capitalism perform its full duty to the public and that is what scientific American finance and patriotic American statesmanship must proceed promptly to do.

ANCIENT, YES

Los Angeles, Sept. 24 (AP)—Dr. John H. Bradley, Jr., professor of geology at the University of Southern California, in the Inyo mountain range, has found fossils of starfish 200,000,000 years old—"perhaps the rarest of all invertebrate life ever revealed in a fossil state."

informs you that in time of war, the Japanese prime minister, foreign secretary, the war and navy secretaries become dummies.

The chiefs of staffs in the army and navy deal directly with the Emperor and go straight to him.

In this little trouble, if they, metaphorically hanging their heads on the floor at the Mikado's feet, say, "We wish to win this war by the virtue of the Emperor," they can go ahead and win it, while the League looks on. Their "government" has nothing to say.

'DRUNK,' WHO PLAYS CHURCH ORGAN AT NIGHT, DIVORCED

Girls Admit They Lied to Jail Two Men in 'Attack'

MOTHER OF HIS WIFE TELLS OF PRANKS

East Pepperell Man Is Accused of High Jinks After Dark When "Lit Up"

When the organ peals at 10 p. m. in the Methodist Church at East Pepperell and appeals to the Deity are audible, it is not necessarily a sign that services for the salvation of souls are in progress.

It may be a sign that Walter West is "drunk again," according to testimony given in probate court in East Cambridge today.

The story developed at the hearing of divorce action brought against West by his young wife, Gladys.

TURNED ON LIGHTS

The wife's mother, Mrs. Nellie Hill, testified that one night when he was "pretty full, drunk and staggering," West gained entrance at 10 o'clock to the Methodist church, turned on all the nights and played the organ. She heard swearing, she said.

Mrs. Florence E. Merrill, a neighbor, said West and a drunken friend awakened her one night by their shouting.

CHASE UPON STAIRS

Mrs. Mary Nilan, another neighbor, said she was disturbed by West chasing his wife up and down stairs.

Testimony regarding various acts of cruelty by West was given and Judge Campbell granted the wife a divorce and custody of a 10-months old daughter.

He took the question of alimony under advisement.

'PETTING' WAS WITH CONSENT, THEY ASSERT

Men Were Sent to Prison for 15 to 20 Years, Then Conscience Began to Hurt

Two girls whose stories last March sent two Woburn men to State Prison for terms of 15 to 20 years, today changed their minds in an attempt to obtain the release of the prisoners.

Sworn statements by Helen V. Purcell, 20, of Allston, and Helen Theresa McCarthy, 19 of Cambridge, presented at a special hearing before the Parole Board were corroborated by the girls themselves.

Henry J. McCue and John J. O'Donnell, serving sentences at state prison for criminal attack on the two girls near the Woburn-Winchester line, denied the charges and today their alleged victims added their voices to the denial.

The girls admitted to the parole board that the party was "mutual" and that they had escaped the overtures of the men.

Miss McCarthy, the first witness, said she changed her story because her "lie hung heavy on my conscience." She said she couldn't sleep and was generally upset because she knew the men were serving time for an act that she had willingly been a party to.

Both girls said that they had not told the truth on the stand in the original trial last March and that the dramatics were "just a bit of stage play."

Miss Purcell testified that she had taken two drinks the night of the alleged attack but was not drunk and knew what she was doing. She said she had consented to petting.

Miss McCarthy told the same story.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frank Volpe, who prosecuted the case, cross-examined the girls but they repeated that they had voluntarily signed the statements that the party was "mutual."

CONSCIENCE HURTS THEM

HELEN V. PURCELL HELEN THERESA McCARTHY

These girls, Miss Purcell of Allston and Miss McCarthy of Cambridge, told the parole board at state's prison today that they lied last March to send Henry J. McCue and John J. O'Donnell to prison for 15 to 20 years. They said today they had been willing parties to the "attack" upon themselves, for which the two men were imprisoned. (Staff photo.)

MRS. BLYE GIVEN HER LIBERTY

The law today released its hold on Mrs. Clorinda Lucille Blye, who stepped from Lynn court freed of the charge of assault with intent to murder her husband, John A. Blye of Parkland ave., Lynn.

She was freed as the result of an autopsy performed yesterday on the body of Blye, which revealed he committed suicide by shooting himself in the head following a domestic argument last Sunday morning.

Judge Reeve found no probable cause and discharged Mrs. Blye.

JAPAN ACCEPTS STIMSON PLAN

Washington, Sept. 24 (INS)—Withdrawal of Japanese troops in South Manchuria to the railroad zone, which they are entitled to occupy under treaty, was promised the State Department today by Katsuji Debuchi, Japanese ambassador.

He told Secretary Stimson, however, he could not predict how soon the withdrawal could be effected. Stimson, in a note to Tokio, had suggested such withdrawal.

Peiping, Sept. 24 (INS)—Japanese soldiers wrecked a Chinese trench mortar and truck factory in Mukden because American materials were being used, it was charged today by Gen. Li High, who arrived here to report to his chief, Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang.

Li said two Americans, W. A. Mitchell and D. F. Meyers, of Indiana, helped him escape from the Japanese. Meyers is manager of the truck factory.

BRACH, CANDY KING, DIVORCED

Chicago, Sept. 24 (AP)—While Mrs. Eunice Essig Brach was obtaining a divorce decree from Frank V. Brach, wealthy partner in the E. J. Brach & Sons' Candy Company, Mrs. Emily Upton Brach, former wife of Edwin J. Brach, brother of Frank and treasurer of the company, applied for a license to wed a second time.

Mrs. Emily Brach was married last evening in her Evanston home to Bernhard Kretein of Bangor, Me., retired capitalist and former vice-president of S. W. Straus & Co. She was attended by her mother and her daughter.

Mrs. Emily Brach and Brach were divorced by a Paris decree in 1927. She is reported to have received a property settlement of $2,000,000.

Mrs. Eunice Essig Brach received $50,000 cash settlement and the income from a $1,000,000 trust fund. She charged cruelty.

Aster Marcolini, 19, of Douglas st., West Quincy, was held in $5000 as an accessory before the fact in an alleged illegal operation on Mrs. Mildred Hope of Franklin st., Wollaston. The woman's name is on the danger list at the Quincy Hospital.

Bail was furnished by the young man's parents. He will be given a hearing October 17. Clyde Chester of Center st., Dorver, alleged to have performed the operation, was held in $15,000 two days ago.

Wins Divorce

Mrs. Gladys C. West of East Pepperell, who was granted a divorce and the custody of child in Middlesex court today on charges of cruelty. Her husband, Walter West, while drunk, according to testimony, entered a church, turned on the lights and played the organ at 10 o'clock at night.

GIRL CAN FIGHT, SAYS FATHER

Worcester, Sept. 24—Anyone who attempts to kidnap 19-year-old Miss Joan Kinsley, Vassar College sophomore, in the hope of obtaining a large ransom has a tough job on his hands—take it from her "dad," Edward W. Kinsley, Worcester broker.

The Worcester society girl is not worrying over receipt of a letter demanding $5000, with the alternative that she would be "kidnaped." Neither is her father.

"My daughter can handle herself against not only one man, but any two men," said Kinsley at his brokerage office in Norwich st.

Miss Kinsley attended Bancroft school, an exclusive school for girls here, until five years ago, when she went to Europe and attended school in Switzerland.

Returning from Europe, she attended Westover school, an exclusive finishing school in Middlebury, Ct., for two years and then went to Vassar last year.

GIRL DYING IN AUTO SPILL

Worcester, Sept. 24—A ride home from a dance ended probably fatally for Vivian McCormack, 15, of Leicester, early today, when a speeding auto failed to negotiate a curve in Grafton and overturned.

She was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital here with a fractured skull and her name was placed on the danger list.

Hector Raymond, 28, of Main st., and John J. Gannon, 27, of Chandler st., both of Worcester, were taken to City Hospital. Raymond suffered several fractured ribs and Gannon multiple cuts.

Police said a girl companion of Miss McCormack, whose name could not be learned, disappeared after the accident.

According to Gannon, driver of the car, he and Raymond met the girls at Blackstone and invited them to ride home. The machine was racing toward Worcester when the accident happened.

DIVORCE BARES BRIEF BRIDAL

A Cambridge nurse was revealed today as the bride for a few minutes, two years ago, of a man who divorced her in Providence.

As Helen M. Polter, Cambridge Hospital nurse, she made a hurried trip to Providence in 1929 and returned directly after an Armistice Day wedding.

Fernald E. Ham, Providence undertaker, told the story of his "jilting" to Judge G. Frederick Frost in Providence, and the suit was uncontested.

Ham said his bride told him she had left a patient and would have to return immediately to the hospital after the wedding.

Repeated efforts to get her back to Providence failed, he said, until a year ago she wrote and told him the marriage was "all a mistake."

TAX INCREASE DECISION DUE

Washington, Sept. 24 (AP)—Whether the administration will recommend tax revision is expected to be decided within a month or six weeks.

This became evident in high Treasury quarters today.

Progress is being made on the study being conducted by the department's economic experts, but the stage has not yet been reached for the final verdict.

If the decision turns out to be that revision will be recommended to Congress in December, the tax experts will have to draw the plan for submission to the treasury, the budget bureau and the White House before the President could present it to Congress.

The administration has sought to avoid tax increases. Though some believe revision of the tax system is unavoidable, others take the view that the government could meet its deficit this year as it did last through an increase of the public debt and delay tax revision for another year.

Immediately after the wedding the couple made their home in New Bedford, Rev. Hainer taking up his duties in the Baptist faith.

Mrs. Hainer is a graduate of Haverhill High School.

U. S. TO BUILD 11 DESTROYERS

Washington, Sept. 24 (AP)—The United States is ready to forego some of her cruiser rights under the London treaty to aid world disarmament.

Construction of 11 destroyers, on which bids were opened recently, is considered necessary, however, to replace obsolete types and help relieve unemployment.

Secretary Stimson, indicating acceptance in principle of Italy's proposal, now before the League of Nations, for a year's naval holiday, specifically excepted the destroyers from any such agreement.

Because of America's interest in disarmament, he said, the United States was willing to forego some of its cruiser building rights in its belief an arms truce at this time would favor the success of the disarmament conference at Geneva in February.

AKRON A GREAT NAVAL 'SCOUT,' SAYS INGALLS

By DAVID S. INGALLS
Assistant Secretary of the Navy in Charge of Aeronautics.

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service

Cleveland, O., Sept. 24.—The flight of the Akron marks a great stride forward by the American people in man's conquest of the air and particularly of interest is the fact that Ohio, where first man flew in a heavier than air craft, is now the home of lighter than air

Nothing could have been more successful than yesterday's flight of four hours under command of Lieut. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl with 115 passengers on board. The Akron cruised easily and handily about the vicinity of Akron and Cleveland and then was brought back to a gentle landing.

David S. Ingalls

Our maximum speed was approximately 55 miles, but the engines were less than one-half open at any time.

Our maximum altitude was when we were passing over Cleveland. When we arrived back at Akron airport we came down low over the field, and coming in for landing we tested the controls at low altitudes.

The steadiness with which this great ship moved, the great cruising range which she possesses and her top speed of over 80 miles an hour, make her an important instrument in our national defense.

Four or five fighting craft borne within the interior of the ship and readily launched while in flight, and over a dozen machine guns, enable her to successfully withstand attack from other aircraft.

In addition, the use of such a ship far at sea will remove her from the field of attack of any aircraft except those borne on other ships.

She will afford our navy an almost invulnerable scout at sea, capable of scouting many times the territory that can be covered by an ordinary cruiser.

The Navy Department is delighted with the results obtained in yesterday's flight, which has placed us first in the field of lighter-than-air craft.

LEGION ROARS AS IT VOTES FOR BEER

to improve conditions which he described as a serious menace.

"The government has been humbled," he said, "and has lost control of one of its greatest industries and has lost a great source of revenue."

MISERABLE FAILURE

Scott W. Lucas, of Havana, Ill., who resigned recently as national judge advocate of the legion to become a candidate for United States senator, speaking for a referendum, said:

"After 13 years of prohibition we find business men, professional men, laboring men, men in high counsel of politics, young men, young girls, openly and flagrantly violating and defying this amendment, if not in letter, at least in spirit, by consuming liquor in one form or another, whenever and wherever they can get it.

"We are confronted with sawed-off shotguns, machine guns, poison alcohol, gang murders, armed automobiles, high-powered rifles and stills by the thousands, all of which were unknown before the Eighteenth Amendment.

"The time is fast approaching in America when decisive and definite action must be taken.

"In my humble judgment the great mass of people who detestedly believe that the American Legion is dedicated to God and country are looking for the Legion to lead them out of the pitiable morass of legal, moral and economic complications which have arisen under this amendment.

END OF GANG RULE

Vincent Carroll, of Philadelphia, followed with a strong plea for the resolution. He declared that "what we want is not so much beer as the end of gang rule."

"This is the time for us to assume that leadership that is respected us," he said. "We want the expression that was denied to us when this thing was put over."

Douglas Hudson of Kansas was the first speaker on the other side of the issue. He declared that a vote for the referendum would be misinterpreted as a vote for the return of beer.

The Kansas delegation, he said, opposed the resolution because of this possible misinterpretation that the Legion has adopted a mug of beer as its symbol.

PLAN FOR "SONS" PUT OVER.

In the business session the convention passed to next year final action on proposals to form a Sons of the Legion organization. The Legion directed that the committee which has been investigating the proposal continue its work and report to the 1932 convention in Portland, Ore.

Money from poppy sales in the future must be used exclusively for welfare and rehabilitation work, the convention directed in a resolution.

Mrs. Louise W. Williams of Tuckahoe, N. Y., was elected president of the Legion Auxiliary at the concluding session of the auxiliary convention. She defeated Mrs. Nell Tindell Morgan, 448 to 378.

MILTON GIRL WEDS ENGINEER

A wedding with a nautical flavor was solemnized in St. Angela's Church, Mattapan, today, when Miss Catherine M. Curran of 65 Belvoir rd., Milton, became the wife of Patrick J. Delehanty, second assistant engineer of the steamship Leviathan.

Nuptial mass was celebrated at 9 o'clock by the Rev. William A. Ryan. Miss Mary A. Curran, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. The best man was Thomas Knee of Trenton, N. J., a cousin of the bridegroom.

The reception and breakfast followed at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Patrick J. Curran, at which 100 were present.

The couple then left for a tour of the British Isles and the Continent. They will live in New York.

GALLO WINS RESPITE OF MONTH

R. Scharton, his lawyer in his first trial.

Ethics of his profession forbade the lawyer to tell this secret to the governor. But he talked, in private, to save Gallo's life.

Atty. Thomas H. Mahony, for Gallo, revealed today while the new respite was being granted that he wants a full pardon for his client. If a pardon is not granted, he will ask a new trial.

NO GALLO EVIDENCE

Thus he revealed for the first time that the Gallo defense would not be satisfied if the death sentence were merely commuted to life imprisonment.

John Farrell, a detective, told the governor today that as an investigator hired by the Cero defense, prior to Cero's second trial, he had sought but found not a shred of evidence to Gallo as the slayer.

Joseph Fantasia is dead and almost forgotten.

Gangi Cero is free, forever guiltless of the murder of Fantasia in the eyes of the law. Once acquitted, he cannot again be accused.

STRANGEST LAW PUZZLE.

But Gallo's life is at stake in as strange a situation as a Massachusetts Governor, judge or lawyer ever faced.

The sentence of death that once lay on Cero's shoulders now lies on those of Samuel Gallo. And Cero's former attorney says Gallo is innocent, Cero guilty.

With Cero in faraway Italy, Atty. Scharton decided to talk, regardless of professional ethics, in order to save a life.

At the trial of Cero nearly four years ago, he tried just as hard to save the life of his client. Although he failed, Cero was in the end given another chance, just an hour before the electric current was to have been loosed through his body.

Atty. Scharton told Gov. Ely that the statements of Cero were made to him after the first trial and while he was considering going before the Supreme Court of the United States to save his client.

Therefore he did not know at the time of the trial that his client was guilty, but the case, nevertheless, brought this question to the fore among lawyers and others today.

LAW SECRET "INVIOLATE."

As for the lawyer's right to violate the confidences of his client, a law school professor said:

"As I understand it, a lawyer's lips are sealed just as a priest's in confession. He can't tell what a client told him unless the client gives permission. A doctor, even though his relations with his patient were confidential, can be put on the witness stand and made to tell. So can a priest. But a lawyer cannot."

Not only is it a question of ethics, it was explained, but a question of the admissibility of evidence. A judge will exclude such testimony by a lawyer in the courtroom unless the client swears he has released him.

With a man's life at stake, should this rule be changed?

While many lawyers say, "No," many laymen answer the query, "Yes." What do you think?

SCHARTON MAY TESTIFY.

Announcement by Atty. Mahony that a pardon is sought, and that a new trial would be asked if a pardon were not granted, brought up the question of whether the courts would let Scharton testify in Gallo's favor.

But Massachusetts courts hold that the laws of evidence exclude a lawyer's testimony about what his client tells him, unless the client agrees to let him testify. Before the Governor the question of legal ethics was involved; but in court it is in addition a matter of the law of evidence.

Atty. Mahony said that a new trial would be asked on the strength of Scharton's story and that of Mrs. Jennie Del Grosso, who now says she saw Cero shoot Fantasia.

"I KILLED HIM."

Mahony said that Atty. Daniel J. Gallagher, who was counsel for Philomena Romano, one of the star witnesses in the murder case, when she was arrested for perjury, had offered to tell the Governor what he knew. Mahony said he had gladly accepted the offer.

Cero told Atty. Scharton of his guilt after the Massachusetts Supreme Court had rejected his appeal. Scharton was preparing to go before the U. S. Supreme Court. According to Mahony, Cero said to Scharton:

"Well, you've done a —— of a lot already; I killed — — ——."

Detective Farrell was before Gov. Ely for ten minutes today. Mahony accompanied him.

According to the lawyer, Farrell told the governor that he was hired by Atty. John Bickford prior to Cero's second trial. Other investigators hired were named Sibio, Nazarro and Bedeau.

The purpose was to get evidence in corroboration of the story of Philomena Romano, who had originally testified against Cero, then changed her story and accused Gallo, thereby saving Cero from the chair and reopening the whole case. At this time the girl had vanished. Although once found and brought back, she is missing again today and has been for more than a year.

SCHARTON'S DILEMMA

"After his investigation, Farrell told Bickford that he had found no evidence of any description pointing to Gallo as the slayer," said Mahony.

Continuing, Mahony said:

"I understand that Mr. Scharton gave the matter of divulging what Cero had told him a great deal of attention and talked with at least one judge. Cero had waived his privilege in the first Gallo trial, which would have permitted Mr. Scharton to testify in that trial as to what Cero had told him.

"Unfortunately Mr. Scharton was in Florida and did not return before the case was finished. In the last trial, when Mr. Scharton was available, Cero refused to waive the privilege which attaches to communications between attorney and client.

"Mr. Scharton had the problem to solve of letting a man go to the electric chair who he knew was innocent of the crime charged, or of divulging the information given to him by Cero, who had been acquitted and who had gone to Italy and could not be put in jeopardy for the same crime or no reason of anything which Mr. Scharton would tell.

SCHARTON'S CHOICE

"Mr. Scharton at the State House yesterday declined to state publicly what Cero had told him, because he felt that the privilege still attached, but he was willing to tell the governor privately because he felt that it was his duty as a citizen to see that an innocent man did not suffer, and that this outweighed the matter of privilege.

"I feel that Mr. Scharton did a humane and wise thing in relating the story to the governor as he did, because it would be a gross miscarriage of justice to permit an innocent man to suffer the death penalty."

It was disclosed today that a statement made in Brooklyn by Mrs. Fantasia, widow of the victim, in which she said Philomena Romano was not present at the shooting, was missing.

The statement, made in the presence of Inspector Joseph Cavagnaro to Police Captain Carey in Brooklyn, cannot be found in the police files or those of Dist. Atty. Foley, according to Forrest C. Palmer, special investigator for the advisory board of pardons.

SAID GIRL NOT PRESENT

In it Mrs. Fantasia is reported to have stated that the Romano girl was at the Fantasia home in East Boston when the shooting occurred and knew nothing of it until informed by Mrs. Fantasia, her sister.

She was induced to make the statement by Inspector Cavagnaro who met her in Brooklyn while seeking the Romano girl.

Palmer said that Cavagnaro informed Governor Ely of the nature of the statement yesterday, but a search for it was unproductive. There was a possibility, he said, that a copy might be obtained from the stenographer who took it.

Joseph Fantasia was slain in Prince st., North End, in 1927. Cero was arrested and convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to the electric chair.

Soon afterward Gallo was arrested for trying to influence witnesses to give testimony less damaging to Cero. Gallo was convicted and sentenced to Charles St. jail, and one day Cero, who was also there, stabbed him.

GIRL SAID SHE LIED

This brought the case to the fore spectacularly, but Cero continued on his road to the chair until, at the eleventh hour, Philomena Romano, one of the star witnesses against Cero, told Governor Fuller and Judge Louis Cox of the Superior Court that she had lied at his trial and that Gallo had shot Fantasia.

Later this girl vanished, but her statements brought Gallo to trial for the murder and convicted him. This made two men convicted as principals in the same murder, in which only one gun was fired. So Cero and Gallo both got new trials and Gallo was convicted, Cero acquitted.

Cero had learned English during his long imprisonment so that he could talk to judge and jury without an interpreter.

He pointed to Gallo as the slayer. Cero, freed, left the country and is now in Italy. He cannot be accused again of the same crime. The Constitution of the United States guarantees him that.

"BRINGS OUT THE HIDDEN GOODNESS"

John Bonnello, Chef of the Parker House in Boston, approved Gulden's because it gives delicious flavor without obvious taste.

When he used Gulden's Mustard in his famous recipe for Baked Beans, Bonnello wrote us "Gulden's brings out a wonderful hidden goodness in food."

The delicate blend of mellow mustard seeds and spices that you find only in Gulden's penetrates the food while it cooks, giving new appeal to ordinary dishes.

Try spreading it on meats before cooking. Add it to sauces and gravies and left-over dishes. Just as Gulden's is the ideal seasoning for Baked Beans, it makes all food doubly appetizing

WIDOW STAGES TRAGEDY IN DARKNESS

By JAMES J. SMITH,
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent.

Stamford, Ct., Sept. 24—A cabin cruiser came to a dead stop in the darkness on Long Island Sound just after midnight this morning.

Clouds obscured the stars. A light wind ruffled the water, and waves slapped at the bow of the boat like a dozen cats' tongues in saucers of milk. In the silence, as the echo of the motor died, a woman said:

RE-ENACTS TRAGEDY

"They killed him here. It was here they threw him overboard."

Mrs. Lillian Chelius Collings, at her own request, was re-enacting for authorities investigating the murder of her husband an eerie night reenactment of the tragic events aboard the cruiser Penguin on the night of Sept. 9.

It was two weeks, almost to the exact moment, from the time she claims the pirates boarded their yacht, bound her husband and threw him into the sea and abducted her.

Step by step over the course of the Penguin and the course of the canoe in which she was abducted, and step by step along the sequence of bizarre events on that tragic night, she took a famous detective, an assistant district attorney and a Connecticut judge, who is her counsel.

HER THIRD ORDEAL

Her third re-enactment of her story of the murder, the first at night, was the crowning dramatic incident in the two weeks of investigation already crammed with tense drama. It took nine hours.

Her companions of the night were Detective Felix Di Martini, directing the government's investigation; Asst. Dist. Atty. Fred Murder of Suffolk County, L. I., her own counsel, Judge William A. Kelly, and her sister-in-law, Miss Helen Collings.

The cruiser used was a private yacht, not the Penguin. At one time during the re-enactment the motor of its starter became disabled and for nearly two hours, while repairs were made, the boat drifted in the darkness in the same waters that last week gave up the bound and battered body of Ben Collings.

REMAINS CALM

Her story, which authorities have openly doubted and which she herself has admitted to be illogical though truth, she strengthened by the midnight reenactment of the events that left her a widow at the age of 26.

She is apparently a woman of limitless courage. Nerves strained by the ordeal of days and days of questioning and by two previous reenactments, yet she went through the test calmly, her emotions in complete control at all times.

"They killed him here. It was here they threw him overboard" . . .

And later on, in the curve of the Sound to the elbow of Oyster Bay:

"It was here the boy got out of the canoe and waded ashore."

And still later, as the throttle of the motor was cut again,

"Here they threw the clothes overboard."

And again:

"Here the man put me aboard the motorboat."

It was all vividly real and a tense atmosphere enveloped those in the motorboat. Conditions of time and weather approximated those under which Collings went to his mysterious death, his feet and hands tied, feebly protesting the violence that cracked his skull.

Mrs. Collings found she could better approximate the locale of important steps in the tragedy at night, taking her bearings from the lights on the Long Island shore.

The utmost secrecy surrounded the midnight drama, that began soon after darkness descended on the Sound last night and did not end until an early hour this morning.

GIVES FULL AID

At one stage of the proceedings the cruiser was moored off Long Island, and Mrs. Collings went ashore with her counsel and inquisitors and had dinner at a private home.

Explaining the re-enactment, Judge Kelly told the Boston Evening American today:

"During her questioning by Detective Di Martini Mrs. Collings herself suggested she could identify certain locations on the Sound more accurately at night with the aid of shore lights.

"She thought she could better point out the spot where the boy landed, where certain articles were thrown overboard and other locations with greater accuracy than she had done before during the daylight visits to the scene.

"None felt like pressing her, for it was obvious that it would be a trying situation for her, but she is a woman of extraordinary courage.

"I say that honestly. She insisted upon going through with it at night and last evening the sea was smooth and it was fairly warm. It was impromptu because Mr. Munder phoned me in the evening and said he had managed to find a small boat we could use.

DRIFT TWO HOURS

"I communicated with Mrs. Collings and found that she was ready. We started off (he would not say from where) and we went over the scene.

"She was successful in identifying a great many locations with complete exactness in and around Oyster Bay.

"At one spot where we stopped we ripped the gears of the self-starter and the crippled boat drifted for nearly two hours."

'BOSSY' ALL SET FOR BIG FIGHT ON COUNCIL

That Legion convention in Detroit won't hold a candle to what's going to occur in staid old Newburyport tomorrow, according to friends of Mayor Andrew J. ("Bossy") Gillis.

After doing his share to make the Legion conclave a glorious one, "Bossy" arrives home tomorrow to strike in his typical fiery fashion at political enemies who have put over a couple of fast ones on him while he was away.

His closest political friends said today he was preparing a typical retort, combined with action on the charges made against him in the City Council last night.

DOUBLE PROBE ON HIM.

In his absence the councillors vied with one another in giving him a verbal thrashing, and when the smoke had cleared away, Mayor Gillis had been made the subject of two official investigations.

At that famous gas station of his—which, as you may remember, was what caused him to run for mayor in the first place, to defend his rights—"Bossy" has been generously dispensing eight gallons for $1, according to the councilmen.

But, they allege, he charged the city 17.2 cents a gallon, or $1089.28 for 6311 gallons of gas bought by the city since Jan. 1. On motion of Councilor Richard Noyes, supported by Councilors Thomas J. Coffey and Arthur J. Smith, the council voted to investigate this.

And then there's the matter of highway expenditures, which the council voted to have Dist.-Atty. Hugh A. Cregg of Essex County look into. Waste and extravagance are charged.

REFUSE MAYOR'S REQUEST

Some of the allegations made in the council speeches were "too many white-collar workers and too few truck drivers in the highway program"; a total of $895.50 paid to one man in 14 weeks for highway work.

The Council also defeated a request of the mayor that $7599.43 be transferred from an appropriation for other streets to cover an overdraft.

Eugene Twomey, Council president, with whom "Bossy" fought publicly last Saturday night, being arrested for disturbing the peace, has been suspended from his position with the Haverhill Electric Co. The mayor charged that Twomey mixed business and politics.

If Co-eds Smoke They Must Go Out

Chicago, Sept. 24 (AP)—Northwestern University co-eds may smoke cigarettes all they please—but not in the campus buildings.

"They may sit or stand on sorority house steps and smoke," said Mrs. Edson Fowler, president of the Quadrangle Association, which maintains the sorority houses, "but they will not be permitted to smoke inside. It's too easy for non-smokers to get the habit in smoke-filled living quarters."

2 MEN SEIZED IN COLLINGS MURDER

fied Mrs. Collings' lawyer, Judge William A. Kelly, at Stamford, that he desired the widow to face the suspects.

Mrs. Collings left Stamford by ferry shortly afternoon, and at Oyster Bay, the ferry terminal, a police car waited to whisk her to Mineola jail for the tense moment.

She had only a few hours rest following a nine-hour night reenactment on the Sound of her version of the murder.

She cannot fail to identify the men who killed Collings and mistreated her, authorities believe.

FLED ASYLUMS

Quinn and his younger companion were taken into custody at different points in Queens early today.

Quinn, police said, has three times been arrested on suspicion of murder but never charged. Each time he has been committed to an insane asylum and twice he has escaped.

He was last committed to the Central Islip State Hospital in 1929. Records of that institution show he was treated for paranoia.

He is a stevedore and boatman but lately has been working as a hospital orderly on Welfare Island.

Until recently, authorities state, he owned a canoe such as was used by the "pirates" to board the Collings' yacht Penguin and kidnap Mrs. Collings.

Further, it was asserted, he is thoroughly familiar with the north shore of Long Island and the knowledge of Sound geography displayed by the pirates during the crime is a clue upon which investigators have been working.

Quinn has remarkable physical strength, police said. He has a brother who is a Queens physician.

The suspects were subjected to a five-hour grilling at police stations in Queens before being brought here.

Dist. Atty. Blue said they were not "under arrest," but were being held pending the arrival of Mrs. Collings.

He attempted to throw an air of mystery on the pair, and once irked to mislead newspapermen by indicating they had been released.

This secrecy extended to the ranks of other investigators and Detective Felix Di Martini, working with Blue, engaged in a verbal altercation with newspapermen and stated:

"If there is any more dissension I will quit the case."

His statement was taken to indicate there had been dissension among the investigators themselves.

Quinn was paroled from Central Islip Hospital two years ago, police said. Despite his numerous arrests, he has only one conviction; when he was 18 he served a sentence in Elmira.

Newkirk was said to have a criminal record.

Both offered alibis to account for their movements on the murder night.

HAD CLIPPINNGS

According to Di Martini, the elder man said that on the night of the crime he attended a movie in New York and returned to the hospital at 9 or 10 p. m.

Newkirk told the authorities that he had been working all day September 8 and that he retired about 10 p. m. At first, according to Di Martini, he said the older man was in bed when he came in. Questioned later he was not sure of this, the detective said.

When confronted with the clippings on the Collings murder case found in his room, Quinn is said by police to have mumbled:

"Because I've been expecting to be arrested—that's why. Because I've been arrested before—for this sort of thing—but they had to let me go—they had to let me go, because they couldn't get anything on me, so they sent me to the asylum. I've been expecting this, and I wanted to read upon the case, so I'd be ready."

DENIED ARREST

District Attorney Blue of Suffolk County, who hurried by automobile to the 108th Precinct station in Long Island City to question Quinn, underlined waht, in the light of subsequent developments, appeared to be an attempt to conceal the fact that Quinn was being held.

After questioning Quinn for more than five hours, Blue issued a written statement, reading as follows:

"I have been questioning a man named Timothy Quinn of New York city in connection with the Collings case. He is not under arrest, and is not being detained."

Not a word was said of any other man being in custody, nor of the search that, even then, was being made of the two suspects' room in the rooming house in Queens.

Instead, Blue announced that he was "through for the night"—that he was going home.

Quinn accompanied the district-attorney to his car, and got into a second car with a group of Blue's detectives. Watchers were given the impression that Quinn was being given a friendly "lift."

The first intimation given that all was not as Blue would have it appear, came from Flushing police headquarters. Instead of returning to Suffolk County, Blue and his detectives, Quinn still in their car, suddenly turned up there.

At the same time, it was disclosed that the Flushing police were holding the second man, Quinn's room-mate, incommunicado, apparently awaiting Blue's instructions.

SECOND SUSPECT

This second man was taken from the police station, placed in the car with Quinn, and then the whole party, sirens screaming, rushed off to Huntington, Blue's Suffolk County headquarters.

The seizure of Quinn and of the younger man, it definitely was learned, was the result of the investigation of telephone calls from Huntington or Northport to an address in Queens. The facts concerning this angle of investigation were disclosed yesterday exclusively by the Boston Evening American.

Quinn was taken into custody on Queensboro bridge while waiting for the elevated to Welfare Island. He was taken to the 108th Precinct Police Station, Long Island City, by Lieut. James Smith and Detectives Leyden and Devery.

Lieut. Smith is from Elmhurst Police Station. Just what his connection with the case was was not made clear. Leyden and Devery are members of Inspector Gallagher's staff.

Quinn was said to have told Inspector Gallagher, Dist.-Atty. Blue, and Inspector Harold King of Nassau County, all of whom questioned him at the 108th Precinct Station, that he is a boatman by trade, although at the present time employed as an orderly in the hospital on Welfare Island.

"When I was at the other place (Central Islip)" Quinn told his questioners, "they used to ask me to help them when some patient got violent. I'm pretty strong and I know how to handle 'em.

"Berths aboard ship are pretty scarce just now, so I got myself the job on Welfare Island to fill in, sort of, until I could get something better."

Quinn, the police said, is in fact an extraordinarily strong man. Also, they said, he is well read, very polite, and even "gracious," although he occasionally lapses into poor English.

Chelius to Return to Daughter's Side

Herman P. Chelius, aged Boston musician and father-in-law of Benjamin Collings, Long Island Sound murder victim, will return to Stamford, Ct., to be with his daughter it was announced today at his home, 7 Mouitrie at., Dorchester.

He came in Boston from Stamford on Monday and may return tomorrow, possibly in time to accompany Mrs. Collings to the inquest at Huntington, N. Y.

TUNNEY PENS A KNOCKOUT ON RUSSIA'S CHIN

New York, Sept. 24 (INS)—Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion of the world, threw his hat into the literary ring today when the first of a series of articles by him appeared in a national weekly. Much to the surprise of the sporting world, Tunney started his literary career with a serious treatise on Soviet rule in Russia.

Gene Tunney

The former ruler of the cauliflower ear industry, spending his vacation in Maine, was reached by phone and asked bluntly if his future writing activities were to be confined to economic, social and political subjects.

In reply to a question, 'Have you abandoned boxing as a subject for discussion?" Tunney answered with a laugh that he was already at work on a series of articles dealing with his activities in the ring. One of these will break his long silence on the matter of the famous 'Long Count' in his second fight with Jack Dempsey.

INJUSTICE IN RUSSIA

"Frankly," he said, "the subject of Russia is one which is uppermost in my mind. I came out of Russia where I spent some time this summer with many of my opinions completely overthrown."

The things that intrigued and in many ways aroused his indignation were what he called 'Bolshevist injustice, intolerance and atheism.'

"As an example there was the May Day parade in Moscow," Tunney went on, thoroughly warmed up to his subject, "and American engineers with their wives sat near Mrs. Tunney and myself.

"The parade lasted four hours and one of the women becoming tired sat down. Instantly a soldier hurried over and ordered her to stand up. The protests were general for the woman was obviously fatigued to the point of collapse. But the soldier insisted and up she got.

"He returned to his post and once again she resumed her seat. Back he came, ordering her on her feet. Again she stood up—only to sit down when his back was turned.

RUSSIA TO BE MODEL?

"This comedy kept up for some time until finally the woman's husband appealed to an officer. He merely shrugged his shoulders. The soldier has his duty to perform and she was a mere officer to constrain him. The lady was ill? Unfortunate, but—see the soldier."

Tunney recounted other such incidents, without bitterness and without rancor. He was obviously merely a spectator watching the actors on the Russian stage without having many preconceived ideas about their acting.

Yet Tunney has no blanket condemnation of Russia. He still thinks that America has much to learn from the Soviet.

"Somewhere between what America is aiming at and the Russian goal is the road our children will take," he said. "Surely, Christianity will not be destroyed by atheism, nor will western civilization succumb to robots. But I see our Government of the future borrowing liberally from the Soviet's communism."

39,939 Voters on Somerville's List

The election commissioners of Somerville announced this spring that the registration of voters which closed last night for the municipal primaries Oct. 13 totalled 39,939. This is the largest number for a municipal primary in the history of the city.

Of this number 20,577 are men, 19,362 women. Yesterday 756 voters were registered. New voters registered since July totalled 5,927, of which 3419 were women.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is in your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. You get aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

WOMAN TELLS BANKERS 'HOW'

Pittsfield, Sept. 24. Life insurance premiums of $117,000,000 went outside of Massachusetts in 1930, much of which could have been kept here under the savings bank life insurance plan, the convention of savings bank men were told here today by Alice H. Grady, state deputy commissioner for savings bank life insurance. She urged that more banks maintain life insurance departments.

"If you have reason to believe you can do a better job for him than the insurance company can and that you can at the same time enhance the financial importance of your bank, it seems to be that this points the way to a very simple and direct answer to your question."

Miss Grady recalled the strenuous opposition to the bank insurance plan before the first policy was written 23 years ago.

"But today more than 100,000 policies are in force, representing $80,360,000 worth of insurance," she said.

THE VOICE OF Broadway
By Louis Sobol

"There is no death," the poet sings, and then
He dies of hunger just like simpler men.
"True love will never die," another rhymes,
And then gets married twenty-seven times.
"All beauty lasts for aye," a third will say,
Then leaves his mistress when her charms decay.
Therefore, to poetry I've said farewell,
For poets just like mortals, lie like hell.

—GEORGE D. LOTTMAN.

There Should Be a Law!

This is one time when it would give me fiendish delight to use the name of the man involved. At any rate, he's a fairly well-known dry Congressman from a Southern State and perhaps you may be able to identify him when I tell you he's a majority owner of what once was a prosperous distillery. He arrived in town a few weeks ago, and armed with a letter of introduction from a leading bank in Washington, approached a certain well-known Wall Street broker with the request that he arrange a meeting for him with a national firm licensed by the government to buy and sell liquor. The arrangements were made and the Congressman went to see the head of the firm. Would the concern buy out his liquor business? The executive regretfully announced that he wasn't interested. Would he, then, be willing to buy liquor from him? The dry Congressman quoted the price. The executive shook his head. He was selling liquor cheaper than the price quoted. Whereupon the Congressman, noted for his philippics in behalf of prohibition, told the gent off, ending on a shriek of rage. "It's people like you," he stormed, "who are bringing this country to the dogs and making it impossible to enforce prohibition. It's people like you who force us to violate the laws, making us sell our liquor to dirty, racketeering bootleggers!"

For Your Glossary!

A few more choice sepian expressions for those interested in Harlemians are offered by Lee Posner, the authority on almost everything that concerns New York's black belt. When a rotogravurean, he informs us slaps his arms down against his sides and keeps his index fingers pointed out, shouting "triggeration," he means to convey that "everything is swell." A "jiggle jaw" is an "ear bender," or, if you prefer, some one who talks and talks and talks. "Dippers" are lovesick couples and "chimps," patrons steered to gyp joints by cab drivers. Incidentally, Posner volunteers a few hackman's expressions, some of which may be new to you. "Stick up" or "take it on the arm" is the cabman's way of asking would you mind riding with the flag up, as the fare doesn't register, permitting the cabbie to quote you a price for the ride and pocket whatever he wants. "Rolling a gus" is taking a drunk on a long, roundabout way, running up a large bill. "Being skunked," is getting no tip. "Soldier," any call which brings in a fare registering a dollar or over.

P. S.—He Got the Job!

Dropping into the Palace recently and fascinated by the melodies pouring out of the piano played by Harold Arlen, Lenore Ulric, aware that the curly-haired musician was a composer of parts, decided that he was just the man to fashion a ditty for her for the forthcoming "Social Register" in which she is scheduled to appear shortly. She asked C. B. Dillingham to get in touch with Arlen and make the arrangements. Dillingham, it seems, didn't quite get the name and sent for Louis Alter instead, giving him the commission. Alter got busy, wrote a song and was playing it for Dillingham when Ulric entered. "Heavens," she shrieked, "that isn't Harold Arlen—and if it is, how he's changed." But Alter played on—and Ulric softened. And so the song he wrote, something called "The Key to My Heart," will thrill you, they tell me, when you see the "Social Register." And if this isn't a true story, then, I hope all the children of Marie Lachmann, who gave me the yarn, grow up to be stooges for Ted Healy.

Society!

Acid gossip, poison tongue,
Silly chatter, someone strung
On a gibbet; someone tried
Privately, and crucified;
Arid souls in iron bars,
Dying dreams and buried stars . . . .
Spin the world, lad, spin the sun,
Oblivion to oblivion.

—Wilfred J. Funk.

Glad t' Meetcha!

Among other things, William Anthony McGuire, the playwright and librettist has a reputation for procrastination. Broadway can tell you the number of times Ziegfeld used to tear his hair and rush to telegraph offices pleading to McGuire in cryptic messages of 600 to 1000 words to f:ged's sake finish up that second act, and other producers have had similar trouble with the lad. Eventually, he'd turn in the job completed—and usually it was a bit. Knowing that his reputation for tardiness had preceded him to the coast, McGuire decided when he started to work for Fox that he'd turn over a new leaf. Accordingly, although he wasn't scheduled to appear on the lot until about noon, he'd show up at 9 in the morning. When his script was due on a Friday, he'd appear personally with it on the Wednesday before. The lad was well nigh perfect—so perfect in fact, that one of the high Fox executives called him aside one day and chirped, "Mr. McGuire, I'll be honest with you. When you came out here, we had a great many misgivings. We'd heard about how you did things—how you stalled and stalled and never finished a job on time. I want to take my hat off to you. We were all wrong about you." McGuire beamed. "I'll be honest, too, Mr. W.," he said. "Before I got out here I'd heard a lot of things about you. They told me you were a dirty dog. They were wrong. You aren't dirty at all."

Broadwaywardness!

A temperamental singing principal of one of the current musicals is somewhat tamer today. Friday night, he suddenly rushed out to the wings, grabbed a chorus boy and yelled, "You're crabbing my act. I've a good mind to sock you." Before the lad could say anything the singer punched him. The chorus boy invited him out in the alley and returned the compliment. Whereupon, the tall warbler, holding on to his jaw, went to the producer and insisted that the boy be fired—or else! The boy was fired. This was just too bad, for every chorus girl in the show grouped about the producer and told him he'd have to do without a chorus until the boy was reinstated—and not only that, not the principal would have to make a public apology to the kid. Which he did—and the show went on. These cute show folks!

Often Happens!

B. A. Rolfe knows a chorus girl who auditioned for an angel, hoping to be put on Broadway. Instead he put her on Park ave.

ALICE WHITE SEES HAPPINESS IN HOLLYWOOD

Marion Davies Is Most Popular Actress in the Films, She Says

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Once upon a time, up in stork heaven, the telephone went ting-a-ling, and the long-billed bird that acted as order clerk answered, asking the when, and the where, and what-kind of a baby, please? A girl! So whoever it is that makes the little girl babies up of sugar, and spice, and everything nice, put all those ingredients into the parcel of humanity in the bird's eye cloth container. And then dispatched the mite by the stork airline.

They tagged the parcel of pep later—Alice White!

Alice White

Talking about the sweetness of womanhood, and life, makes me think of Alice White's mother. I learned of her quite by accident. She had looks and ability to entertain; then, suddenly, cut off in youthful womanhood, she left the baby daughter, with the mother's heritage, including the beautiful fawn eyes.

"I owe all I am to my mother," said the petite Alice.

"My ambition is to do more serious things," she is saying. "I began in pictures the way I wanted to go, but I was switched off. They typed me. I didn't like it, but it went big at the box office, and my films made oodles of money, so they kept on typing me. But my real desire is to do dramatic roles. That is what my mother's gift prepared me for.

"My whole career is based on the thought of my mother. She is my incentive, and the thought of her, what she was, and what she gave me of herself, carries me on."

Love in Hollywood?

"Sure, you can be happy in Hollywood, and forever, if you want to be," says Alice. "You hear, naturally, only of the smashed romances; nothing of the many happy homes of stars I know. Movie stars can be happy, even if married, yes, indeed, they can. And are. Love and a movie career do mix; everything, however, depends on the mixers. It's all up to the man and the woman."

The most popular actress in Hollywood?

"Marion Davies!" exclaimed Alice.

They all grow enthusiastic about Miss Davies.

"She is just the most wonderful girl in the world," said Alice. "As fine and noble and sweet as she can be. The most remarkable of hosts, the best of entertainers, big-hearted and kind. Her charities are amazing; hundreds of the grandest acts and other hundreds we never hear of in the colony. For Marion never lets her right hand know what her left giveth. The sorrowing, the invalid, the poor, all come within the aid of this modern Lady Bountiful. And she is a great actress, too, one of the screen's best."

Hollywood career for girls?

"Let them all stay at home, and get married, and build up happiness with babies," says Alice." That will be better off."

Speak for yourself, Alice!

"I do. I'd rather be happily married right now, and settled down in a home with my own kiddies, than be the greatest of stars," she answered with vast determination.

"Boston has been wonderfully attentive and kind to me; I like the way its people warm up to you—gradually, then surprising you with bursts of applause, and no end of hospitality."

George Arliss' Next Film Will Be 'The Man Who Played God'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, Sept. 24—When Jack Warner was in London he had luncheon with George Arliss. Arliss, who came into the movies with his tongue in his cheek and rather a condescending viewpoint, told the head of Warner Brothers that he had definitely finished with the stage and from now on all his allegiance would be to motion pictures.

Louella O. Parsons

That, I think, is one of the big stories of the year, since Mr. Arliss has never been what you could call pro-movie. His first picture when he reaches Hollywood October 15, will be "The Man Who Played God," based on Jules Eckart Goodman's story. John Adolfi who will direct Mr. Arliss, is now working on the story.

What about "A Successful Calamity?" you ask. Well, that's number two. "The Man Who Played God" will be the first Arliss picture produced this fall.

* * *

If you chance to meet Eric Von Stroheim you will find he is full of enthusiasm over his picture, "Walking Down Broadway." Winfield Sheehan has asked Eric to go to New York, take a camera and get some real atmosphere, and that apparently is just what Mr. Von Stroheim needed. Life has been none to kind to Eric, but he wants to prove above all else that he appreciates Winnie Sheehan's confidence in him. So just watch out for "Walking Down Broadway." I admit I am one who believes it will be a good picture. In this case I hope I am right.

* * *

Everyone will be glad to know that Ed Sedgwick is getting well. He has been trying and trying to overcome his attack of pneumonia. He was slated for first one picture and then another, but his doctors said "No." Now, he is really getting well and his first picture will be a football story for Columbia. It is a father and son affair, with Jack Holt playing a football trainer. The author, Howard J. Green, has not named his story, but it is interesting, you'll agree, that Richard Cromwell of Tol'able David fame will play the son to Jack.

* * *

Over at the Fox studio there is one name that is posted on the bulletin as available on call. That name is Warner Baxter. Warner isn't fussy. He knows that if he does as the Fox studio directs he'll come out on top. Now, you wouldn't think Warner would want to play the lead in "Widow's Might," would you? That's the story of the girl who masquerades as the widow, one of the oldest plots in captivity.

I wonder that the Fox company has considered taking it. Yet, when Warner Baxter was told he was wanted on the lot for that part he reported for work to Irving Cummings, who directs. Maybe the picture will be better than it sounds.

* * *

Seen and Heard

Frances Starr has left the motion picture colony flat just when we thought that she'd forgotten the stage, too. She bought a ticket to New York and left hurriedly to discuss a theater engagement. Miss Starr was one of David Belasco's stars and she, with many others, have mourned his passing. But so vital a personality as David Belasco's always lives on. That's one thing about making a place in the world. Paramount is getting ready to welcome Maurice Chevalier who arrived in New York yesterday from Europe. He will come immediately to Hollywood to start work on "One Hour With You."

Frances Starr

* * *

This ought to make an interesting film if all the promoters' claim is true. Edward Small's Iceland expedition has just returned to Hollywood with between 80 and 100,000 feet of film. The picture is called "The Life of the Eskimo."

Snapshots of Hollywood

JETTA GOUDAL, HAROLD BRIEVE, MIRIAM SEGAR, HAL ROACH and others interesting to the motion picture colony attending "Precedent," based on the Mooney case. MARION DAVIES' new dachsund giving Hollywood the once over and refusing to commit himself. HOWARD HUGHES and DOROTHY JORDAN dining tete a tete. HENRY, CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S friend, planning a new dish for Charlie. After the close of Yom Kippur, Jewish holiday, the E. P. SCHULBERGS, HARRY RAPF and others breaking their fast at SAM HOLLANDS. WILLIAM HAINES leaving for Baltimore for a personal appearance. MYERS-SEIGEL, Hollywood merchants, giving 5 per cent of their sales to the Assistance League on Friday. Motion picture stars will sell the goods and the baby stars will tak part in the fashion show. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Holt Stars in Sea Drama

"How does it feel under water?"

That was the question fired at Jack Holt while on location during the making of "Fifty Fathoms Deep," the Columbia deep sea drama opening at Keith's tomorrow. The company was stationed outside the harbor breakwater off San Pedro, Cal., Jack had just emerged after making one of the underwater shots featured in the film and was able to give his impressions before they became magnified and embellished by the passage of time. He rubbed his chin in his characteristic manner and started.

Jack Holt

"Well, it feels as though your surroundings are unreal, and you, yourself, are entirely detached from them. The noises around you sound like echoes. Continually you hear the blub-blub-blub from your air hose and when an occasional fish bumps against the glass front of your helmet, the sound it makes could be likened to a small volcanic explosion."

THE YOUNGER SET OF LAST YEAR WILL BE ELATED over the news of Rosamond Holton's engagement to William Shearer, Jr. Roddy was one of the most sought-after girls of her season and kept it up when others had been forgotten. Rumors of her engagement have been many. Everyone likes Bill, too, so it looks as though they might keep it going forever after.

MISS EMILY PERKINS

* * *

"Rowdy Roddy," which is the affectionate sobriquet given by her many friend, is the daughter of the Herbert H. Holtons of Beacon st., and the nickname only applies because she is a SWELL fellow, as they say in the comics. She has been spending the summer on the North Shore, sailing, swimming, golfing and every other form of sport which helped a sun-tan. It was most becoming.

* * *

Mr. Shearer is the son of William L. Shearer of pioneer furniture fame. You may remember the first skyscraper to tower in Park sq., when the square looked like a railroad backyard and all the bankers prophesied he would go broke. Well, he didn't, and in a short time he had shown the way for other enterprising merchants, who had the vision of an overcrowded business section down Washington st. way and who erected other modernistic buildings around him. That step has more than justified his dreams. What a great time Roddy can have interior decorating the love-nest. There are no immediate plans for a wedding; they will probably wait for a rare June day in 1932.

Ball Planned at Hotel Somerset

ELIZABETH SHURCLIFF IS ONE OF THE DEBUTANTES of this season who comes from an interesting, or rather unusual family. The name was until last year spelled Shurtleff, but living on Beacon Hill and having two daughters to step out of a Bulfinch doorway they decided to change the name back to the Old English spelling. Elizabeth's parents, the Arthur Shurcliffs, have now announced a ball at the Hotel Somerset the night before the Harvard-Yale game, and they have asked the Paul Birds and Mrs. Wainwright Perkins to join with them for their daughters, Alma Bird and Emily Perkins.

* * *

NOW, THERE IS A DELICATE little fashion question arising—Mrs. Shurcliff, who has never worn a decollete gown—in fact disapproves of them—will surely have to conform to the fashion of her daughter's day and wear conventional evening attire at her ball, especially as Elizabeth is the only one of the Shurcliff children—and there are a half a dozen—who loves the frivolous side of life. The others are all quite studious, with college, wood-carving and gardening absorbing them.

Miss Alma Bird

* * *

MRS. SHURCLIFF IS A PEG-LEGGER—we don't mean what you think we do—everyone knows her peg-leg chairs and tables and her annual sale at the Hotel Vendome. Peg-legging is the art of wood-carving in a simple, homely way. Elizabeth is a "pal" of "Dodo" Deans and Lydia Evans and the Shurcliff summer place at Ipswich, unique and fascinating, where she has taught carving and carpentering this summer to the neighbors' children. Her ball will be a large affair with a heavy stag line from the H-Y game.

* * *

ALTHOUGH SALLY WHITE had a snappy dance early in the month at Manchester-by-the-Sea, invitations have just gone out from Dr. and Mrs. James Henry Lancashire for a dance in honor of their granddaughter, Miss Sorah Lancashire White, at Graftonwood, Manchester, on October 2. It will be a Who's Who affair.

* * *

THE FASHIONABLE DRESS shop which Barbara Richardson will grace this winter is the Marguerite, Mrs. Frank Shaw's salon on Newbury st. Mrs. Shaw's son is engaged to that lovely girl, Ruth Wellington of Chestnut Hill. This enterprising little lady—Mrs. Shaw—will fit you in French and we do not mean costumes, only; she speaks French fluently, having given lectures in that tongue before her marriage. And no one in the F. F. V. has a more chic appearance than this charming person herself; too bad she cannot sell you the figure with the gown.

* * *

EVERYONE IS WONDERING just what the Lathrop Browns will do for deb-daughter Camilla, this winter. Halla, last year's bud, stepped out to a blare of trumpets at the Copley-Plaza with Josef Urban doing his stuff. We hear that this year's ball will be just as elaborate and even more unique.

* * *

ELIZABETH SAWYER, ONE of the last season buds, is going to bloom in Boston this fall. She will enter Smith College when it opens. This has been delayed on account of the epidemic of infantile paralysis in the Connecticut Valley.

ROSAMOND HOLTON TO BE BRIDE OF WILLIAM L. SHEARER 2D

Engagement Is Announced at Luncheon

And here it is at last! Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Henry Holton announce the engagement of their daughter, Rosamond, to Mr. William Leonard Shearer, 2d, son of Mr. W. Leonard Shearer, Jr., of 250 Beacon st., and grandson of the late William Leonard Shearer. The announcement is being made at a luncheon today at the Holtons' summer place in Swampscott, to which a number of Miss Holton's intimate friends, and she has many, have been invited.

Miss Holton graduated in 1929 from the May School, where she took part in many activities during the six years there. The following season she made her debut becoming a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Shearer prepared for Harvard at the Choate School in Wallingford, Ct., and was graduated from college with the class of '29. His clubs include the Hasty Pudding, Institute of 1770, Speakers, Harvard and Union Boat Clubs. He is now connected with a Boston firm.

No immediate plans have been made for the wedding.

It will be remembered that last year Miss Holton's older sister, Eleanor, married Dr. Reginald Smithwick, and now has a small daughter. They make their home in Brookline.

Miss Scott Will Wed Yale Grad

The engagement of Miss Helen Livingston Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Scott of Homewood, Wellesley, to Mr. James C. Greenway, Jr., is announced by the parents of the fiancee.

Miss Scott, a Junior League and Vincent Club member, studied at Miss Winsor's school and also in Paris.

Mr. Greenway, son of Dr. and Mrs. James C. Greenway of Greenwich, Ct., is a Yale 1928 alumnus and is affiliated with the museum of comparative zoology at Harvard University.

AIDS FUND FOR HOSPITAL

MRS. GEORGE VON L. MEYER, JR., president of the board of lady visitors for the Lying-in Hospital, who have subscribed to a block of seats for each of the six performances to be put on by The Professional Players of the National Junior Theater.

Society Notes

MR. AND MRS BENJAMIN H. TICKNOR, of Brookline, have been staying for a few days at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York. We hope they are duly proud of their illustrious son, "Ben," Jr., Harvard's last year football captain, whom we understand is coaching the centres of this year's hopefuls. We have been wondering what he is going to do next for amusement and occupation when the football season is over, but we are sure he is one with plenty of ideas, after hearing about a few little things that happened during the evenings after training was over for the past couple of years.

MR. AND MRS. CECIL BARRETT, who have been heard of several times this summer at Bar Harbor, are also in New York, staying at the Warwick. They divide their time in Winter months between that metropolis and Washington, where their daughter, Miss Audrey Barrett made such a memorable debut last November. They will go up to their summer home to join her for two or three more weeks, before settling down for the Winter.

Rowen - Lynch Wedding in Brighton

Miss Constance Elizabeth Lynch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Lynch of 195 Lake st., Brighton, yesterday became the bride of Francis J. Rowen, son of Dr. Henry S. Rowen of 30 Bennett st., Brighton, a trustee of Boston City Hospital.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph V. Tracy, celebrant at a nuptial mass at St. Columbkille's Church, Brighton.

A wedding breakfast and reception followed at the Hotel Commander, Cambridge.

The couple were attended by Mrs. Edward Collaton of New York city, a cousin of the bride, and Paul R. Rowen, a brother of the bridegroom.

The bridesmaids were: Miss Anne I Coffey of Somerville, Miss M. Harriette Rowen, sister of the bridegroom; and Miss Mary McCormick of New York city.

Ushers were Thomas Mee, George McCloskey, Philip D. Rowen, brother of the bridegroom, and Edward Collaton.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester schools and the St. Elizabeth Hospital school for nurses. The bridegroom is a graduate of Georgetown University and is in the wholesale produce business.

After the honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Rowen will live in Belmont.

Velvet Right in Fashion Now

By ANN ARDEN

Every woman loves a velvet dress.

When she is feeling particularly seductive and wants to look the part she instinctively reaches for the velvet dress.

Then it is news—and good news—that velvet dresses are right on top of fashion. They are selling well in the stores, which is only one of the signs.

Just a touch of lace—preferably real lace—is needed. Place it at the neck, on the cuffs, at the shoulder line, where you will, but that combination of velvet and lace is something quite irresistible.

A dress of this sort is swell for bridge parties, or for informal suppers or formal luncheons.

The gown pictured of black chiffon velvet is rich, simple, and charming. Its long princess lines are moulded to the hips, with graceful fullness low on the skirt. Front of bodice is shirred to clip of brilliants in belt, a fold of blue velvet, is run through twin buckles. The wide shoulder line is accented by shaped bands of heavy white lace, a circular flounce of the velvet giving flattering sleeve depth.

The wearer of this costume would be assured of an effective entrance at any function.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WAAB.

Mrs. Gertrude Caswell Given $32,000 Gift

Mrs. Gertrude Robins Caswell of Prides Crossing, receives a bequest of $32,000 under the will of Mrs. Mary R. Caswell, on file in New York.

To Mrs. Gertrude Caswell's husband, John, a nephew of the testator, who lives in London, the will gives various valuable paintings, art works and similar objects.

Bequests to eight public institutions total $160,000, the largest bequest being $70,000 to St. Luke's Hospital, New York.

Mrs. Caswell's estate was estimated in the will as "over $20,000," but specific bequests brought the total to more than $250,000.

To Nora Lardner, one of Mrs. Caswell's "faithful servants" is willed $6000 outright.

William Watson Caswell, nephew and executor of the estate, of 43 East 58th st, was left $130,000 outright and half of Mrs. Caswell's furniture and paintings.

Edward J. Foley, 1717 R st. N. W., Washington, D. C., another "faithful servant," received $5500. All servants in Mrs. Caswell's employ three years or more receive $500 cash.

ONLY MILD FLURRY OVER EUGENIE HAT
—By Gilbert Seldes—

Gilbert Seldes

A DRESSMAKER'S PRESS AGENT invited me to the preview of her client's autumn collection and, feeling that the cajolery of her letter might fail, added a sting: what she called the usual complaint that American men do not know much about women's clothes. I didn't go, but I learned something about fashion, none the less, for I dined with a woman just back from Paris and when someone asked her what Paris intended to send us to take the place of the Eugenie hat, she answered, "What in Heaven's name is the Eugenie hat? I haven't seen one yet."

Possibly the Eugenie hat was worn in Paris the week this woman was in Salzburg; possibly in France it was worn only by the woman whose facial contours made the hat appropriate. Or maybe it never existed. I recall that at the end of July I assisted at the purchase of a hat and the seller had a single cry: "Down over the right eye." There was some talk about feathers here and there but that passed rapidly. Also, on the street one encountered a species of heavy-silk net, perched dangerously over a small segment of the skull, and looking like a dislocated example of the hat worn two months earlier. An ironical art critic went through all the paintings of the Empress Eugenie and found not one hat which could possibly suggest the current mode. By mid-August all the announcements were becoming serious; the Eugenie hat was already outmoded.

Obstinate Men

There are men who go into a sullen rage whenever a new fashion appears, and women who never understand why. I suppose some women have never understood how their men resisted the balloon trousers of the collegiate dresser a few years ago. It was not lack of courage so much as an acute modesty and a sense of the ridiculous. Well dressed women have these qualities also but a propaganda of years has overcome any feminine tendency to be the last to lay the old garment aside.

Nothing was so melancholy as the docile acceptance of the long skirt after years of praising the freedom of the short, and nothing was so surprising, three months later, as the absurdity of a short skirt caught on the street or in a belated movie. Years ago the attractive Gaby Deslys sang that "a broker, a lawyer, a banker, a sport will always look longer when dresses are short." Yet the men who admired the short skirt are as enthusiastic as the women for the long ones.

Who Killed Cock Robin?

It was said that the Eugenie hat would not last because it could be too easily copied in cheap models. But if it is dead, cheapness is not the reason. The reason is that it was worn by women who looked like the wrath of God in it. And this suggests that the moment a new fashion threatens to overrun the world an intelligent designer can make a fortune by putting its opposite on the market. It would have to be done boldly, conceding the [illegible] of the prevalent style, and then [illegible] saying, "For those who are [illegible] by this style, here is something else." The mere suggestion that a style-decree takes human beings into consideration would be a refreshing novelty.

The depressing thing is that to women all men seem to dress alike because they wear the same thing year after year; and to men all women dress alike because they wear the same new thing every five weeks. Worse than this: the independent dressers in Greek mantles and Javanese batik all look terrible. The well-dressed ones are the lucky ones: those whose own style happens to coincide with the best style of the moment.

Antiques

About with bated breath I go
  I shudder if a friend but speaks
Lest I should hear it, loud or low
  The dreaded word—the word "Antiques"!

For my dear one has caught the craze
  (I might describe it as "disease"),
And while I once trod peaceful ways
  I now have shaking of the knees.

I think she dreams of Hepplewhite
  On whose acquaintance I've no claim
I hear her mutter in the night
  Some such inconsequential name

We motor if the day is fine
  And yet I feel myself grow pale
If by the road she spies a sign
  Above a door—"Antiques for Sale"

Could some physician find a cure
  For this delusion, in a trice,
Could I the remedy secure
  How willingly I'd pay the price!

Clinton Scollard

Other Men's Ideas

FROM the forthcoming "Man's Show' Civilization" by George A. Dorsey, Harper

Why should we keep a standing army of 400,000 men to guard our lives and property? Why should our robberies and homicides be so relatively more numerous than England's?

"'Mental deficiency,' they tell us. Piffle! What are the facts of the juvenile court?

'Removed from vicious surroundings and placed in a healthy environment, 70 per cent of children with both parents criminals were restored to society. Eighty per cent where one or both parents were alcoholics. Eighty-one per cent where one or both were 'mentally defective' or otherwise abnormal . . . Saved from becoming the means of making this country a jungle where one is never free from the threat of armed thugs and the tyranny of an army of police."

"Here's hoping you get rid of your bunions, Mrs. Barnes!"

Women
—By Mary Borden—

I KNOW that to envy anyone is unreasonable, since I wouldn't change places with any woman on earth. Not for a million dollars would I stop being myself and become someone else, not even if this meant being the most beautiful, the most intelligent or the richest woman in the world. For I'm used to myself. I'm incurably fond of myself, and though at times I say to myself that I'm a bad wife, bad mother, bad writer, still I do in the bottom of my heart think, taking things all round, that I'm as good as most women and probably as happy.

Nevertheless, though it is illogical, I do envy lots of women, many different kinds of women and a good many women who would perhaps envy me.

* * *

Having knocked about the capitals of Europe for 20 years I envy, for instance, the woman who has never left the town where she was born.

I envy her the monotony of her life, the intimacy of her surroundings, the smallness of her horizon. I never motor through a village without looking at the little old houses in their quiet gardens and thinking, "The woman who lives there doesn't know how lucky she is to wake every morning in the same room and look out of the same window at the same village street." For to live always in big, brilliant, strange places among strange crowds who speak a strange language may be amusing for a while but in the long run it is an exhausting, bewildering and lonely business.

* * *

But I envy even more the woman who has no public identity and no social position, whom no one has ever heard of, whose name never appears in the papers and who is free to be herself and live her own life.

Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. I think of these things when I look at this woman. I see her going to work and coming home from work. I see her jumping on and off buses, hanging on straps in the underground, I see her busy in offices and behind the counters of shops and slinging plates in cafeterias. I hear her laugh, call out, shout excitedly, angrily maybe, for she is impulsive, natural, unself-conscious and doesn't care what I think of her and I watch her enviously, for I see that she has got life in a firm grip, has more of it and more liberty than I and is not bothering about the pursuit of happiness.

Her life is her own, her soul is her own, her mind and her face are her own.

She does what she does because she wants to do it, or is obliged by grim necessity to do it, but for no false, crooked or meaningless reason, and she doesn't "kid" herself, lie to herself, pose and posture and pretend to herself.

The Modern Maiden

Challenge of East
—By Charles Hanson Towne—

A BOOK of great importance, in these thrilling days, is Sherwood Eddy's "The Challenge of the East," which Farrar & Rinehart have just published. It is sound and unprejudiced, brave and truthful and gorgeously written. This is no cursory survey of the state of things in India, China, Japan, Korea, the Philippines, Turkey and Palestine. It is a thoughtful [illegible] based on long observation and experience of the peoples and countries named, and engrossed [illegible] the author is in the political elements involved, he has time to toss in memorable pictures of the life and temper of the lands described. The result is an invaluable record, and it should be read with care by every one of us.

C. H. Towne

Sees Gandhi's Splendor

In an age when spirituality seems to have gone into the discard, Mr. Eddy catches for us much of the luminous splendor of Gandhi. He sees the glory of this little man, but he does not deify him. "The [illegible] he points out, seems to think that [illegible] [illegible]

And while he [illegible] so far as Gandhi is concerned, he is equally [illegible] in drawing attention to England's problems in India.

The importance of India to the British Empire [illegible] [illegible] the United States [illegible]

Yet wise leaders like Ramsay MacDonald have seen the writing on the wall and realize that the masked fist [illegible] never strike back at non-combatants.

Here is Gandhi in our machine age [illegible] to countenance violence, a statesman who [illegible] to indulge in so old-fashioned a thing as prayer, one who could fast for 21 consecutive days and rise up at the end triumphant.

What are we to say of such a man? He is not to be called queer and quaint [illegible] thing of St. Francis of Assisi [illegible] and we all know that even behind prison [illegible] was able to lead his people in their [illegible] freedom.

China on the Brink

China is in chaos. Momentous [illegible] happening there and it would take very [illegible] swing that vast land into a state of [illegible]. Mr. Eddy reveals the danger. Yet there [illegible] strong leaders there seeming to [illegible] sort of unity. Of President Chiang [illegible] writes:

"He is a strong [illegible] least communicative of all the [illegible] of Asia."

Japan, of course, is the leader of [illegible] but the Japanese have not forgotten [illegible] humanly impossible for them to [illegible] clusion act which this country passed in 1924 whereby "no alien ineligible to citizenship [illegible] enter the United States."

Country Quiet

We city ones [illegible] the country [illegible]
It is too quiet and lonely there
Quiet? There is a never-ceasing [illegible]
Where unseen insects [illegible] the air
With twanging strings of sound
The rat-tat-tat of woodpecker
Digging for riveted worms [illegible]
The endless swishing [illegible]
The constant swaying throb of [illegible]
The plush-back country night [illegible]
With fur-quiet feet caressing the [illegible]
An owl's inhuman cry can shred the [illegible]
And leave in the night a trembling fear
The sharp staccato bark of a fox
The sudden wail of a whippoorwill
Can plunder sleep till cool white-fingered [illegible]
This is the country's quiet—
The wordless, hushless voice of unseen life

An eminent scientist writes the head chemist in our Research Department:

"Chesterfield Cigarettes are just as pure as the water you drink"

THE WATER YOU DRINK is tested from time to time by expert chemists to make sure that it is free from all injurious substances—that it is pure.

So it is in the manufacture of CHESTERFIELD cigarettes. Expert chemists test all the materials that are used in any way in CHESTERFIELD'S manufacture, to make sure that everything that goes into CHESTERFIELD is just right.

THE LEAF TOBACCO IS PURE. Long steel ovens—drying machines of the most modern type—scientifically "dry" and clean and purify the natural tobacco leaves by exact high-temperature treatment.

Then the shreds of cut tobacco, as you see them in your CHESTERFIELD, are again heated, cleaned and purified. From these pure tobaccos the cigarettes are made, and only the purest paper—the best that can be made—is used for CHESTERFIELD.

Cigarettes used to be made in an old-fashioned way, by hand. Now, no hand but yours touches CHESTERFIELD—another purity safeguard.

CHESTERFIELDS are made and packed in clean, sanitary factories where even the air is changed every four and one-half minutes—purity again.

ALL THIS CARE is taken to give you CHESTERFIELDS as nearly perfect as cigarettes can be made. Delivered in a moisture-proof, sealed package, they reach you just as good, just as pure as when they leave the factory. Good . . . they've got to be good—they're just as pure as the water you drink!

THIS IS LIFE

SOVIET ENCYCLOPEDIA WILL CHANGE 'NATURE' OF THE RUSSIANS

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

THERE IS SOMETHING GOING ON in Russia, which to anyone who believes in education seems hardly less important than the Five-Year Plan. That is the new Soviet encyclopedia. The "small" encyclopedia of some 10 volumes is very nearly finished. It is designed to spread the gospel only until the real work, which shall consist of 90 monumental volumes, can be finished. That will be many years in the future but its principles are already established.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

We do not, of course, take encyclopedias very seriously over here, although in the past few years there has been a definite improvement in them for popular use. All the new editions of the famous books of reference have been rewritten and re-edited with one definite purpose in mind, the humanizing of knowledge, to use James Harvey Robinson's expressive phrase. The old encyclopedia was only too often written by scholars for scholars; their articles began where popular knowledge left off.

How Soviet Changes Human Nature

The new ones have been planned by journalists for popular enlightenment. They are written in the vernacular, from the point of view of skilled publicists experienced in getting ideas over to the average reader who reads as he runs. But they are still advertised merely as reference books, places where Bobby and Betty can "look up" their home work, means by which men and women may become sparkling in conversation and versatile in allusion. The idea of an encyclopedia as a form of fundamental education has never struck us.

The Soviet Republic, however, is pinning its faith on rigorous, popular education in the tenets of its faith. It controls the greatest publishing business in the world. Its literary output is enormous. It is attacking illiteracy and ignorance head-on. The result is that already half a generation has grown up, knowing the Soviet doctrines and only the Soviet doctrines.

We in America speak blandly of the impossibility of changing human nature. By this we mean, instinctively, that the particular ideas in which we have been brought up are universal ideas. Our own American individualism is so deeply ingrained in us from our earliest years that we honestly believe it is impossible for others not to share our views. We forget that if an entire generation is to be brought up knowing only Soviet views, that point of view to them will constitute "human nature" and will not admit of change.

We pay lip service to education. The Soviets are trusting it to the extreme point. Hence the importance of their new encyclopedia. Briefly, they are rewriting the history and the philosophies of the world for communist consumption. They are interpreting all of life from one point of view.

* * *

Changes Interpretation, Not Facts

The only example of such a feat in our country is the splendid "Catholic Encyclopedia," written uncompromisingly from the point of view of the Church. There is no Protestant encyclopedia, which, by the way, is a weakness in the Protestant Church.

What such an encyclopedia can accomplish will, obviously, vary in varying fields. It is a little difficult to see, for instance, how a strictly communist slant can be given to pure science, either the physical sciences or the biological. The facts about physical chemistry or about the nervous system are hardly capable of being twisted.

The philosophical interpretation of those facts is a different matter. At present our own scientists are hopelessly involved, hopelessly contradicting one another, in their interpretation of the facts of science. There is undoubtedly a swing toward a religious interpretation, although the materialists of the older generation are fighting staunchly for a mechanical interpretation of our universe. There is little doubt that the Soviet philosophy based on science will be strictly materialistic.

The treatment of history, sociology and economics will, of course, be strictly Marxian. The determinist and economic interpretation of history is as old as Marx and has made considerable progress even in our individualistic and capitalist state. The old view of history is pretty well scrapped, even in our most conservative universities. It will be very easy from the Soviet Republic to survey mankind from China to Peru, from the wars of the Sumerians to the fall of the pound sterling, and to interpret the whole pageant of history in terms of their own philosophy.

* * *

Biased Literature, Art, Religion

Religion, no doubt, will be interpreted from a single point of view as definite as "The Catholic Encyclopedia's" itself. All history will be given an anti-religious slant; all the history of religion will be interpreted from a Marxian point of view.

Literature, too, even the literature of the creative imagination, may very well be interpreted according to the laws which Tolstoi put forth in "What Is Art?" and which Upton Sinclair followed up in his curious book, "Mammonart"—the doctrine that most of the literature of the past has been aristocratic, plutocratic, capitalistic, bourgeois, and, as such, heretical for all good communists. It will undoubtedly lay down the rules by which a proper communist literature may be written and appreciated. Soviet literature may be trusted to be as much a matter of formal rule as was French literature under Louis XIV and English literature under Queen Anne.

Imagine an encyclopedia, planned and written in such terms, used as basic authority in all the schools, libraries publishing houses! The imposition of such a work for only 30 years will suffice to ground a whole people in the system. You can't change human nature? Human nature is the most plastic thing in the world, if you get it young enough. A great deal of what happened in the French Revolution may be laid at the doors of the famous "Encyclopedia" of the 18th century radicals, Diderot, D'Alembert, Voltaire.

Institutions are only the lengthened shadows of ideas. It doesn't matter whether the Five-Year Plan takes five years, or ten, or twenty. What does matter enormously to the rest of the world is that it will be carried out by people thoroughly instructed in a consistent world philosophy and history, enforced through the mediums of such fundamental publications as this new communistic encyclopedia.

"Stole it!" Willy burst into laughter. "That's a nice thing to say! Commandeered, this was. Boned. Picked up if you like—But stolen!" Clothes May Not Make the Man, But They Help the Man Make Good in Business

A wardrobe has become a necessary part of Mr. Man's business equipment. Alfred Nuzzo shows the clothes that the average purse may buy.

The executive's outfit is shown here by Mr. Nuzzo, as he gives dictation to Miss Betty Feinstein. Class at low cost is shown. (Staff photos.)

Stanton was a defendant in the Page & Shaw stock fraud case. He pleaded guilty in that trial and his case was filed.

SCHOOL HEAD'S ORDER OPENS ROW ON OFFICIAL DENTIST

TEACHERS TOLD TO BAR MAN NOW ON JOB

Taunton Health Board Says It Has the Power to Say Who Is Who

A controversy over who shall have charge of the examination of the teeth of school children in Taunton was raging today between the board of health and the school board.

The trouble started when Supt. of Schools Mowry sent a letter to principals of all Taunton public schools advising them not to have the school dentist Dr. John J. Gregg examine children's teeth.

HEALTH BOARD INSISTS

This brought a prompt retort from Dr. T. E. Cusick, chairman of the board of health which flatly told Gregg. He declared that his organization has jurisdiction and that the teeth of a children in both public and parochial schools will be examined by the dentist elected for that purpose.

There the matter rests, with Dr. Gregg transferring his activities from public to parochial schools.

The board of health bases its stand on a city ordinance giving it the charge of a dental clinic, which functioned in the schools last year.

NAMES NOT TURNED IN

The school board, on the other hand, claims jurisdiction under the authority of a special legislative act.

The cause of the dissension, as far as could be learned, seemed to be the fact that the names of none of the dentists on last year's cable were submitted this year by the Civil Service Commission.

Dr. Gregg, whose name was the only one before the board of health refused to make any statement.

Test Case Planned on Dry Law Charge

Testing the right of Prohibition agents to intercept an auto in which his client was riding and seizing 242 sacks of liquor valued at $1,000, Attorney John J. Crehan today filed a motion with Commissioner Jenney in Federal court to suppress evidence on the ground that it is a violation of the 4th and 5th amendments of the Constitution.

The defendant, Joseph Costa of Elm st, Gloucester, was arrested in Manchester. The case was continued to Sept. 30.

TOUGH POPEYE IN NEW ROLE

"Well blow me down!"

Popeye, the tough sailor and star of the Thimble Theater, appearing daily in the Boston Evening American, has been done in plaster.

Popeye's features have been copied by young and old in every manner.

But Robert Al Paska, of 37 Lyndhurst st, Roslin, has the newest Popeye novelty. Paska has fashioned Popeye from a composition of plaster of Paris and cement into an attractive ashtray.

Paska, who is a former vaudeville magician, has had no art training other than painting natural colors on wax fruit models. He spent several hours each evening for a week to make the ashtray.

Using the comic section of the Boston Evening American for a model, Paska fashioned Popeye's features in clay, from which he made a cast. Then he poured the composition into the cast and there was Popeye ready to knock out the first person who tried to pick up a loose cigarette.

Miss Augusta N. Meyerhoff, who is a Popeye fan, posed for the camera with the model.

A second survey showed that approximately $4,893,750 is carried out of New England by students seeking a college education in other parts of the country. New England residents were found studying in 25 of the 48 states. The survey was based on the most representative colleges in the country, but did not include two New England colleges.

Marry-Go-Round

THEY STILL GO RIGHT ON MARRYING JUST THE SAME

By HELEN ROWLAND

SOMEBODY ...

Lots of sophisticated young women declare there is no reason why an enlightened girl should marry, these days. And lots of cynical young men retort that there never WAS any reason why an enlightened man should marry. So there!

HELEN ROWLAND.

But the cabinetmakers still continue to turn out hope chests, the jewelers go right on making platinum wedding bands and the clerk of the marriage license bureau still continues to look all fagged out around the end of June!

You can no longer spot a wedded pair by "that married look." You can't even tell the matrons from the debutantes or the husbands from the bachelors, at a country club dance.

We don't even marry for the same old standardized reasons today. Fancy a modern man marrying in order to acquire a cook and a housekeeper! Or an up to date girl marrying in order to get "Mrs." on her calling cards and a lifelong meal ticket!

Marriage has become the union of two individualists for their individual reasons, and it's nobody's business but their OWN!

Marriage may be changed, diluted, disguised and "improved." But it is still the only union that satisfies the human soul. And no life is complete without it!

Dainty Meat Dishes From England

By MARTHA LEE.

THE OTHER DAY during the fall housecleaning rites I came across grandmother's own cook book and grandmother being English, good old roast beef and its accompanying puddings and pastries had a prominent place on its yellowed pages. I noticed with interest that the directions called for meat pie served cold and wondered what dad would think if we set a nice cold steak and kidney pie in front of him for his evening meal. Served hot, however, there's nothing more delicious than a good meat pie, so with no more ado, let's see what grandmother has to offer.

Martha Lee

STEAK AND KIDNEY PIE

Cut two pounds of round steak into thin strips, season with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Arrange the strips in a deep dish with two lamb kidneys parboiled and sliced, one dozen oysters, one chopped onion, one bay leaf or a tablespoon minced parsley and a sprig of thyme. Dot with butter and pour over one cup of stock or hot water. Cover with a layer of flaky pastry, gash in several places, brush with the beaten yolk of an egg and bake for two hours in a moderate oven.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

P. S.—The Martha Lee Cooking Course ... will open Tuesday evening, Oct. 13, ... Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 14. Each of these free courses covers ten weeks. There are still a few vacancies in the Wednesday afternoon class, so better enroll right away if you are planning to attend.

SIX AWARDS of $1 each will be published for the best ... chosen from ... during the week ... may include not only recipes but ... hints for home ... housekeeping in any of its forms. Address ... Martha Lee ... Winthrop ... Boston.

Note: ... recipe came to ... direct from Miss M. Tolin, Leimlava, County Cork, Ireland. Who ... were ... famous?

RAISIN AND CHERRY PUDDING

- 3 cups of milk
- 4 ozs. of bread crumbs
- Grated rind of 1 lemon
- 1 oz. butter
- 3 eggs
- 2 oz. castor sugar
- 2 ozs. glace cherries
- 2 ozs. raisins

Put the milk on to boil. When it boils add the butter, grated lemon rind, and raisins. Boil for 10 minutes more and then remove it from the heat and leave to cool a little. Add the sugar, and the eggs beaten up to the mixture. Butter a basin and put a layer of halved cherries at the bottom. Pour in the mixture. Grate a little nutmeg over and chop the remaining cherries and place them on top. Cover with greased paper and steam for 2 hours.—Miss M. Tolin, Leimlava, County Cork, Ireland.

PHIL EXPLAINS

"You see, Miss Knight," he had said, "I'm somethin' like royalty—in a way. What I mean is that I'm goin' along incog. My first name is really Phil, but my last name isn't Carson."

His smile faded momentarily as he sifted the pine needles through his fingers.

"You see, Miss Knight, a certain—person said I couldn't make good on my own. That was after we quarreled. I'm mighty sorry about that row with dad," he added rather wistfully. "He said I 'couldn't earn my salt.' And then I took another name and I went away to show him that I was able to stand on my own feet and earn my own living. And," he added proudly, "I've done it."

"Now," said the short man, "we've got to get this thing settled here and now. How do you know you can put it over?"

"I tell yuh," protested the lanky one, "I got the stable boy fixed. I got him under my thumb."

"... suppose Jinks catches him slippin' the dope into the mash."

"I've fixed all that, too. He's to say that Doc Boyle was round and told the boss the filly needed this to stiffen 'er up for the race. Once she gits that dose down, our nag is gonna run away with the fourth race and we'll clean up. But I tell yuh, Belzer, you gotta come across right now, or I ain't gonna do what ... I want."

"Now don't get excited, Bill. I'll give you a grand just as soon as you prove to me the job is done and done right."

THE PLOT EXPOSED

"Two grand in my mitt right now, or I don't do a thing," said Bill, truculently.

As Cora listened in spite of herself while they argued, she heard mentioned the names of the horse, Starlight, and her owner, J. Harley Harris, that king Kentuckian who sat at the ... next her in the hotel dining room.

She did not have long to wait. Phil ... He took both her hands as she rose.

A BLUNT PROPOSAL

"I'm not going to beat around the bush, Cora," he said. "You—you must have guessed that I love you, Cora, will you marry me, dear?"

Cora was ... surprised that she ... sat down suddenly ... Phil was waiting for an answer.

"Please," he said, seating himself beside her. "I've got to go back almost immediately—that's why I've had to rush to you like this. I love you and I've got to know."

"Why, Phil," he gasped, "where did you come from?"

"Hello, dad," was the reply. "Glad to see you."

"Pardon me again, Miss Knight, but—but this young rascal is—is—my runaway boy. I haven't seen him since—"

Cora looked at Phil in amazement.

"When are you coming back home?" demanded Harris, a little brusquely but smiling nevertheless. "I haven't been able to get a trace of you. When are you coming back?"

"When Cora agrees to come back with me—as Mrs. Harris," returned Phil.

Mr. Harris ... turned to Cora, glowing.

"Why—why, that's fine," he exclaimed. "I was going up to present you with the purse I won, my dear, but now I tell you what I'm going to do instead. I'm going to give it to you as a wedding present."

Paralysis of Will Is Worse Than That of Body

By WINIFRED BLACK

JABEZ lay in his bed ... day.

He had been lying in bed for ... years and he was a good deal tired of ...

"B-r-r-r-r, talk about freezing to death."

Winifred Black

It really wasn't so bad to ... in a nice warm bed and ... the news ... going out into the cold.

And in the summer when it was ... hot, then it wasn't so bad either to lie in bed all day and listen to the hum of the threshing machine way over in the ... field, and in the evening the men came in from the field.

In the Spring it was not so ...

The red tassels began to ... on the maple trees, and when the ... started their Spring ... Jabez wished he could go out and walk through the orchard and smell all the ... trees bursting into bloom. ... often felt sorry for him ... in the spring, for he was not an old man and ... for him to waste ... lying in bed ... he couldn't walk a step.

He couldn't even turn over in bed without help and that was ... he was to ...

But the other day an airplane flew too low. It went humming ... like a gigantic bumblebee and then crash it went down ... the roof of the barn.

And before Jabez knew what he was doing, he was out of the house and ... across the yard to the barn door, and now he walks ... just like anybody else.

His body wasn't really paralyzed at all—it was his mind and his will that were paralyzed.

And paralysis of the will is just as real as paralysis of the body.

DON'T be confused by the careless expression, "just like Kotex." Perhaps the substitute looks the same. But demand to know more. Where was this substitute made? By whom? How? Who stands back of it? Is it hygienically safe . . . the kind of sanitary pad a hospital would select?

Last year more than 10,000,000 Kotex pads were used in hospitals. This is the pad that meets hospital requirements! You should be equally strict in selecting an accessory so definitely related to health. Insist on Kotex. It's the world's standard. In addition, Kotex is supremely comfortable. Shaped to fit. Soft—and stays soft. Adjustable. May be worn on either side.

SCHAAF WINS, BUT FAILS TO KNOCK OUT GRIFFITHS

FANNING

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

All American Nine. ↑ Fat Fan Off Squire.
Webb Lands Place. | Carnera, a Tough Un!
You Pick One, Too. ↓ Princeton Dutchmen.

A LITTLE BIT O' THIS AND THAT

There's nothing like an argument to while the time away,
And now we've gone and started one, join in it while you may,
We've picked an All-American Team, not only one, but two,
And if they do not meet your whim, just see what YOU can do!

Howdy, folks. What'll we open the meeting with, today? Football? Not so hot. The gang isn't steamed up enough over the gridiron yet, but is fast warming up to it, if the chatter we heard coming in on the 7 P. X. train from Wahan this morning can be taken as a criterion. The fat fan across the aisle was arguing with the guy with the cigarette cough over the approaching Sharkey-Carnera embroglio. Apparently they hadn't seen the papers and got the reports of the Schaaf Griffith's doings. The card game two seats away broke up in an argument over the makeup of this year's All American Baseball Team. The All American idea caught on. In three shakes of a lamb's tail the whole car was offering All American selections. After hearing the arguments pro and con, here's ours. Altogether boys—"R-r-rotten!"

Pitchers like Brandt of the Braves and MacFayden of the Red Sox might be right up front with teams like the A's and the Cards behind them. Most managers would pick Deacon Dan or Ed over Hallahan. But the only things you can judge a pitcher by is games won and lost, regardless of the club behind him.

The Phat Phan spilt an earful about Jack Sharkey. "I wouldn't bet on him or ag'n him," he vociferated. "He's worse than my old woman—about keeping you guessin. You never can tell what he's goin' to do next. One day he's a wonder and the next he's a bum. He goes along hitting on all cylinders and then blows up and ditches himself. Howinell are you goin' to figger Sharkey after that Mickey Walker match? And how about his busted hand?"

Of course what we may think may not bother the Squire of Chestnut Hill, but, anyway, we believe Primo Carnera is the most underestimated fighter in captivity. He didn't stop Jim Maloney here in Boston but he COULD have stopped him. Primo waited too long. We don't know what happened down in Miami but we do know things were not what they appeared on the face. Carnera was in no shape or was under a pull. Primo Carnera is the biggest, strongest, toughest man in the ring. Despite his size he doesn't tire. Prosperity has softened Sharkey, slowed him up. If he thinks Primo Carnera is going to prove a palooka or a pushover the Squire may have a rude awakening.

PRIMO CARNERA

Three of the famous Cardinal's "Chain Stores" have brought home the bacon in their respective leagues. The Rochester Red Wings with your old pal George Sisler guarding first, won a fourth consecutive National League pennant. Springfield won the Western League bunting and Houston copped the Texas League flag. While the Cardinals are battling the Athletics in the World Series, the Sam Breadon owned Rochester Red Wings will be playing St. Paul of the American Association in the little world series.

Speaking of baseball records, your old friend Pat Caraway of the White Sox is close to one. He has lost 25 games this season. Vic Willis of the old Braves of 1905 is the world's record holder with 29 defeats. The American League record is 26 by Townsend of Washington in 1904 . . . "Chick" Meehan, who put N. Y. U. on the football map, got his gridiron foundation at Dean Academy here in the old Bay State . . . We note that N. Y. U. has snared Jerry Friedman, brother of the great Benny, the Michigan Immortal who is coaching at Yale—That is where young Jerry seemed headed, but Meehan has gone and bagged him.

"CHICK" MEEHAN

We note that Princeton has lassoed Art Lane of Exeter. There was a time when every Phillips Exeter boy gravitated to Harvard like bits of steel to a magnet, but no more. Harvard loses a great line prospect in young Lane. He singlehanded wrecked one whole side of Yale's line in last year's freshmen game. Art opened up the hole through which "Dutch" Draudt plunged for the winning touchdown. "Dutch" has accompanied Art to Princeton.

There have been some great "Dutchmen" in Princeton back fields. Off hand you probably recall John DeWitt, "Bosey" Reiter, Eddie Witmer, Eddie Bergin, Jake Slagle, Vetterlein and "Dutch" Kafer. Every Princeton man in the house now will rise and sing:

"The Swedes may go to Dartmouth, the Celts to Notre Dame,
Which also snares the Dagoes—you know them all by name—
John Harvard bags the blue bloods, but for the old ball game
Old Nassau takes the Dutchmen, and gets there just the same!"

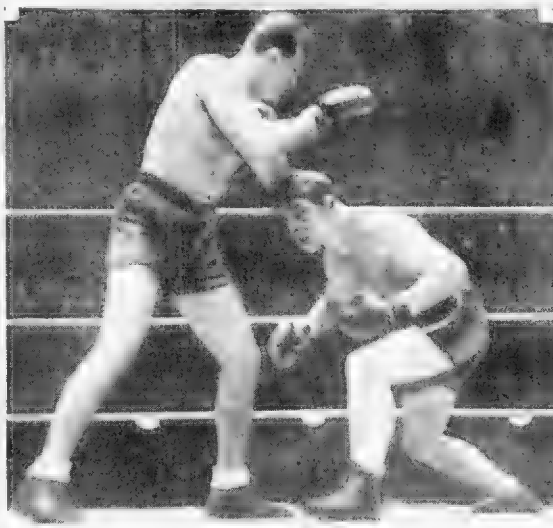
LITTLE TUFFY LOSES BUT BREAKS ERNIE'S K. O. STRING



Tuffy Griffith foiled Ernie Schaaf's plans to win by a K. O. in Chicago last night by fighting crouched low and covering up whenever Schaaf threatened. Schaaf took the decision and had Griffiths all worn out when the go concluded. Fans didn't like the award. But then, Tuffy is a Chicago boy. And so had the gang behind him.

Maybe the fans booed the decision which gave Schaaf the victory, but Griffith and Schaaf hugged affectionately after the war was over. Each carried away a lot of respect for his ring foe. (Int'l Newsreel Telephoto.)

Great Finish Wins N. E. Title for MacAndrew

By BILL GRIMES

After Charlie MacAndrew had [illegible] seventh hole yesterday morning he played [illegible] a one stroke margin over Johnny Farrell [illegible]

[illegible]

"Possibly "Chasa" would have cracked and if so he has Henry Ciuci, Mill River, to thank for his recovery and the winning of the title. Now, Ciuci did not reach out a helping hand to MacAndrew but the result was the same.

[illegible]

"Learn to hit your other shots and you won't have to putt," snapped Ciuci. The reply stunned MacAndrew for a second or so and then he told the Mill River professional an ear full. For a few minutes it appeared as though MacAndrew was going to start throwing a flock of right hand punches at the fiery little Italian but he held his head and then knuckled down to playing the best golf he has ever shot in a championship.

"If I do nothing else in this championship, I'll give him a licking," declared Charlie as he walked along the 8th fairway.

Great Final Drive Won for MacAndrew

He not only did that [illegible]

[illegible]

"Chasa" was so much wrought up over Ciuci's comment on the eighth tee that he could not eat any lunch. He wanted to get at his opponent and get at him he did, just as soon as the fourth and final round started. He set such a torrid pace that Ciuci broke completely and MacAndrew took over the lead at the third hole.

SHAKEUP IN HOCKEY

TWO LEAGUE TEAMS TO BE DROPPED

By BILL GRIMES

After the scheduled meeting of the National Hockey League next Saturday, in Montreal, the board of governors will hold a special session, during which, according to a report from Toronto, the Ottawa and Philadelphia clubs will be dropped from the league.

For years the National Hockey League has been carrying Ottawa and Philadelphia—formerly the Pittsburgh Pirates—at a great expense to the other clubs. As hockey is going now, Ottawa is only a minor league city, while Philadelphians have not been sufficiently sold on the game to warrant a high priced major league club.

Before the National Hockey League expanded into a ten-club organization, Ottawa was rated high as a hockey center.

Due to the lack of seating capacity in the Arena and the fact that the Senators have not been able to hold pace with the teams which are backed with and spending big money for players Ottawa has fallen back to such an extent that the home attendance is so small it was necessary to transfer games.

The elimination of Ottawa and Philadelphia will give the National Hockey League a far more compact circuit. Instead of the respective clubs playing three home and home games with teams in their own wheel and two and two with opponents in the other circuit [illegible] will play four home and home [illegible] teams in their section and three and three with the other clubs.

Philly, Ottawa Fail to Draw Crowds

The Ottawa and Philadelphia clubs not only failed to draw crowds at home but they were also [illegible] on the road. The Senators were an attraction here for some unknown reason, but out of Boston they did not meet with such favor.

One of the games at Ottawa transferred to the Boston Garden last winter netted them $5750 which was found money for they would never have profited to that extent at home or in any other city on the circuit.

Of course the elimination of Ottawa and Philadelphia will not be accomplished without a battle. The hockey interests in the Canadian capital and Bill Dwyer, the man behind the Philadelphia outfit are not going to sit back and take it on the chin without attempting to defend themselves.

Ottawa and Philadelphia promoters have long-term contracts with their respective rinks, which must be [illegible] by some reliable party.

As far as the disposal of the players is concerned arrangements have been made to distribute them to the Detroit Cougars and the New York Americans.

OUIMET, JONES ARE BEATEN

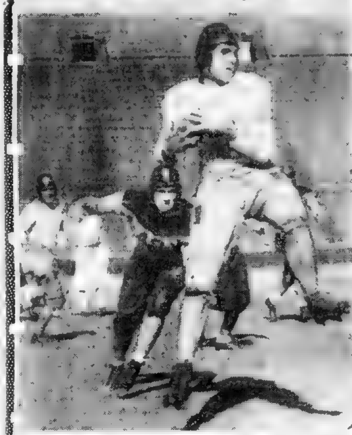
West Orange, N. J., Sept. 24 (I.N.S.)—Twenty-nine-year-old Bob Jones [illegible] less keen than he used to be, but to the public he is still the prince of the fairway parade, the biggest lure in golf.

The winning side was composed of the two members of that efficient golfing partnership—Billy Burke, national open champion and George Von Elm, his runner up.

This team who have been [illegible] ever since they put on their big show at Inverness proved too slick a proposition for Jones and his old side kick from Boston, Francis Ouimet, the rejuvenated national amateur champion.

Burke and Von Elm won easily as the score indicates, 8 and 7. They were five up at the intermission period.

SPORTS REEL



Colvin of Stanford went up in the air after this pass and hung on to the leather, racing for a touchdown. A fine catch which helped Stanford crush the Western Army team, 46 to 0. Stanford is ready now for the tough college foes it must face. The club will be in sports headlines for a few months to come. (Int'l Photos)

One thousand dollars for three days' work! Not so bad. Charley MacAndrew of Quincy grabbed the "grand," plus a lot of golf glory, when he took first prize in the New England Open at Wollaston. The win puts Charley right out front. He defeated a field which included the greatest playing pros.

GOOD GOLF

BY CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

Your body adds power to your golf swing but—and remember this—never as a push. Any push of your body at once becomes pressing—lunging. In your back swing made as outlined here, on account of resistance throughout your body and great[illegible] in your right leg. In your forward swing which always be[illegible] going smoothly and easily, you simply recoil or unwind. In other words you release the re[illegible] stance your swing has caused you accumulate. This way you get a complete, masterful co-ordination and, strangely this very co-ordination makes of the swing an exertion almost absurdly simple.

The Daily Dozen

By M. T. McSWEENEY

There is no good reason why Roy Impellitier, the wrestler, who has [illegible] boxer, will not someday be heavyweight champion. With the wrestlers he learned how to punch and now knows all the clinches.

And that's one thing every good heavyweight should know—how to clinch. Otherwise those fans who go in expectation of seeing the latest in waltzes might see a real fight and be so shocked that they'll never go again.

The Boston University coach hired a beautiful dancing teacher to show his gridmen how to kick. The boys got a great kick out of the eyeful and now they're kicking because the coach no longer has the delightful damsel present at practice.

That's about all the kicking anyone could ask for.

In fact kicking seems to be quite important in everything. Johnny Doeg said he needs to have his pants pummelled with a great big boot to make him play his best tennis and to wake him up. Then after this had happened, he lost his title.

He should have had Primo Carnera do it.

Chicago fans are not so hostile towards Hornsby now as they were at the start of the season. They're drinking the pop out of the bottles before throwing them at him.

Boston University has "fired" Dr. Stearns who has been with them for six years. Maybe they figure that, with Army off the schedule, a capable physician will no longer be needed.

The trainer of the California football team reveals that he used 84 miles of tape on the arms and bodies of football players last year. And an old grad admits that's nothing compared to the red tape he used to get seats on the 50 yard line.

Bob Worthington cracked up the Braves-Red Sox game when he smashed one to center field to score the winning run. Bob must be peeved that the Braves took him from Rochester. Rochester just won another International League pennant and that meant a few dollars to the Branch Rickey hired hands.

BRAVES-SOX NET $21,000 FOR CHARITY

By JOE CASHMAN

The Braves-Red Sox charity game, a most successful affair in every respect, having passed into history, Boston fans will see no more baseball until Sunday, when the Warriors will close the local season against the Phillies in a doubleheader which promises to settle the ownership of sixth place.

In the meanwhile the Braves will have a chance to celebrate their 4-to-3 victory over the Sox and the Cronin men will forget their defeat while batting to hold fifth place in four games in the next three afternoons with the world's champion Athletics in Philadelphia.

Close to [illegible] or 14363 to be exact [illegible] to attend the charity contest, and the contribution to Mayor Curley's unemployment fund is expected to total approximately $21,000.

Those figures are [illegible] able considering the low standing of our big league teams and [illegible] form the world at large that Boston fans have a tender spot in their hearts for the less fortunate [illegible] and are always willing to [illegible] all in their power to boost a deserving cause.

The program arranged by the committee headed by Budget Commissioner Charles Fox was run off without a hitch and was a most entertaining one.

Extra Features Make Day a Success

The ball game was a thriller all the way. The relay race won by the Sox was great. Jimmy Coughlin and his musicians, aided by Bill [illegible] Father [illegible] Boston songster supplied plenty of soul-stirring music. Johnny Noie, Eddie Morris, the Harvard [illegible] the Red Sox [illegible] and Frank Duce supplied plenty of comedy while [illegible] off four balls for the staggering sum of $[illegible]. And His Honor the Mayor ended the finishing touch with a most appropriate speech of thanks as only he can deliver.

The Red Sox had to do without the services of Tom Oliver, star centerfielder, who sprained his ankle the day before and the Braves were [illegible] at the last moment when Billy Maran[illegible] turned up with a sore [illegible] and had to [illegible] appointment of [illegible] always ge[illegible] of the [illegible].

Ed "Lefty" Brandt, owner of 18 National League victories and Danny MacFayden possessor of 16 American League triumphs were the rival hurlers, just as had been promised.

And each pitched a great game. Brandt [illegible] hits or three more hits than his bespectacled rival [illegible] he had better control [illegible] the pinches and [illegible] to win.

SPECTATOR Says:

The action of the market has been reassuring to those who were apprehensive about the effect of England's action. Yet a watchful waiting policy is the only course to adopt at this time. Elimination of a good part of the short interest puts the market in a weaker position to withstand pressure of further liquidation.

Wage Action 'Cleared Air'; Stocks Rise

Rate Advance Would Complete Revival Basis

By B. C. Forbes

Simply as a reporter, not as a prognosticator, the writer recorded in this column [illegible]:

"The United States Steel Corporation is to readjust wages.

"Its example will be followed by other large industrial corporations.

"I learn, too, that lowering of railway wages is also under serious consideration and likely to be brought to the front in the near future."

BOSTON TREND IS REVERSED

Stocks staged a turnabout in today's [illegible] on Tuesday led the list lower today. Atchison dropped nearly 7 points. New Haven was down over 4 and Pennsylvania lowered 2½. Norman Resignation Report Unconfirmed [illegible] (AP)—Rumors that Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, would resign were current in financial circles today, but it was said at the bank that nothing was known there of such report. Mr. Norman, who returned to London from Canada yesterday, was at his desk in the bank today.

Bills Payable in Foreign Money Up

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—Bills payable in foreign currencies held by the Federal Reserve System as of Aug. 31 amounted to $145,215,000, it is revealed in the September bulletin of the system. This total is a new high record and compares with the previous peak of $100,000,000.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Profit-taking, following yesterday's sharp closing upturn in rails and favorite industrials, was inflicted along with short selling in quieter trading in Wall St. today. Trading most of the session was only about a half that of Tuesday's excited market.

Coppers Are Softer, With Metal Lowered

Anaconda dropped to a new 1931 low today on its dividend passing, which had been generally expected. Coppers were softer as a group, with red metal prices softening under 7 cents a pound, although better demand this week is reported in the metal market.

Bond Market Watched Closely by Traders

Bond market is mostly closely watched by traders. Though the rise in rail liens was naturally halted by the profit taking today in railroad stocks, prices of a long list of the well-known issues reached slightly higher price levels before any reactions. British and German Government bonds lost only about a point.

Ice & Fuel Sales Set Fresh Records

Earnings of City Ice & Fuel Co. for eight months ended Aug. 31 were sufficient to cover the year's dividend requirements of $3.60 a share on common stock, after allowing for preferred dividends. Common dividend requirements are $4,240,800 and the preferred dividend calls for $1,295,158 annually.

Sales in July, August and September to date were greater than in the same months last year, establishing a new record.

Says Johns-Manville Will Pay Dividend

Chairman Manville of the executive committee of Johns-Manville Corp. states that despite depressed conditions Johns-Manville will pay its common dividend of $3 this year.

Youngstown Steel Operations Higher

Steel plant operations in the Youngstown district were a shade higher at midweek, up 1 per cent at 4[illegible] per cent. A gain in Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.'s steel melting rate at the Campbell plant accounts for the expansion. A midweek survey shows that 27 of the 66 open-hearth furnaces are melting in the district, against 26 last week and 34 a year ago. Sentiment shows some improvement.

Most Recent Week Shows Best Gain

Including acquisitions, output of Middle West System in August of this year was 407,456,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 377,659,000 kilowatt hours in August, 1930. Each month since the first of the year the gain over the corresponding month of 1930 has been increasing, Mr. Insull says, and the trend has continued into September, the third week of which showed the best gain of the entire year.

International Shoe Sales Showing Gains

Officials of the International Shoe Co. state that the company the past two months has been averaging an output of about 185,000 pairs of shoes per working day and the plants are operating six days a week. This is more than 40,000 pairs daily in excess of the output for the similar period of last year. Sales of the company took a substantial jump upward in mid-summer.

Last Half of Year Is Generally Best

Ordinarily, the last half of the year is the best period for shoe manufacturing companies and for that reason interests close to the management are rather optimistic on the immediate outlook. Since early [illegible] year International Shoe has been keeping its output on a par with orders received, so that there is no stock to speak of being carried.

Electricity Output Up for 8th Month

Eighth successive monthly increase in electricity output of the Middle West Utilities System is announced by Martin J. Insull, president of the Middle West Utilities Company. Without including companies acquired during the past year, electricity output for August, 1931, was 6.3 per cent greater than in the corresponding month of 1930.

American Telephone to Earn Dividend

New York, Sept. 24—Though American Telephone probably will not cover the $2.25 dividend in the third quarter, usually is the leanest of the year, it undoubtedly will show the dividend covered for the first nine months. It probably will better this showing for the full year, since its business generally increases in the last quarter. The regular $2.25 quarterly dividend undoubtedly will be declared for the rest of 1931.

Bond Market Heavy After Lively Rally

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—The bond market turned heavy this afternoon after a rather lively rally during the morning. Weakness of stocks seemed to be a factor in the reversal of trend. Government issues weakened, reflecting firmer credit rates. Many railroad bonds more than lost their early gains which had amounted to a point or so in some instances. Trading was active.

Curb Reactionary Most of Session

New York, Sept. 24—Trading was reactionary most of the session today on the curb with profit taking and short selling. Commonwealth Edison was off 4, Electric Bond over 3, American Gas & Electric off 3⅜ and American Light & Traction off 3. Cities Service fell back almost a point.

STATE ST. Hears:

That one by one the world's financial sore spots are being healed. The bond market, the last of major domestic problems, gave an exceedingly cheerful exhibition on Wednesday. Continued buoyancy in this department will convince the most skeptical that real constructive measures by powerful interests are under way.

Market Policy

The market as a whole seems to be rounding out a bottom. For this reason traders are convinced the best opportunities now lie on the long side. Individual issues will continue to seek new lows, but as long as the majority give promise of being fully deflated it will be to the advantage of traders to seek them out. At the same time short lines, if still outstanding, can be withdrawn on weakness.

One broker offers the following list, in the belief the issues named are thoroughly deflated. For the present they must be looked on as trading purchases: U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Macy, Burroughs, National Cash Register, Industrial Rayon and Standard of Jersey.

Steel

So much has been written and said regarding the Steel wage cuts that it might be well to amplify remarks made here last week. In 1921 the company announced a reduction on August 19 effective on August 29. The news brought out liquidation in fair volume and the market made its low on August 25th. Those who are again looking for liquidation in heavy volume are forgetting that foreign happenings probably hurried along the selling this time.

The terrific speed with which the market has moved forward this week presented harassed bull traders with their most pleasant experience in months. They were not at all backward in terming the buying the result of a short panic.

Boardroom Briefs

Those who utilized weakness at the beginning of the week to accumulate the rails and other equities mentioned here should protect themselves with stops . . . At the same time it would be well to remember a market that makes as fast a bottom as this one did is entitled to a secondary reaction and it will be well to avoid reaching for stocks . . . A setback, instead of being a discouraging event, will offer those who missed the boat a chance to accumulate near the bottom. . . .

Already the visitor to the financial district is able to note a more confidential air. Intangible or not, psychology plays a most important part in the nation's business and it is likely to make buyers of those who have persisted in hoarding.

SELLING WIPES OUT WALL ST. ADVANCES

New York, Sept. 24—New selling, partly profit taking and partly bear operations, today wiped out most of the advances made on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. A few issues were in new low ground, with setbacks of 2 to 15 points for some of the most active issues.

The usual "secondary reaction" was more severe than had been expected. The closing was weak.

FREE REIN FOR BEARS

Given free rein, it was believed that bearish traders were heavy sellers of stocks to replace the short lines taken in by them since Monday morning. Profit-taking in the favorites forced stocks on the market and in the absence of investment buying the demand was smaller than expected.

Atchison tumbled 15 points and Union Pacific was down about 13 as selling orders rained in in the last hour. New Haven fell off about 8 points and New York Central was down over 6.

United States Steel was also under heavy pressure in the last hour, soon falling off about 7 points to 75⅜. North American Company lost 7 points. Westinghouse was down 6. General motors 3. American 6. Consolidated Gas 5 and General Electric 3.

Bonds continued to rise for a time today, continuing their recent remarkable advances, but slowed up and also met profit taking in the afternoon.

MONEY IS STIFFENED.

While the British crisis had been the most unsettling element of uncertainty hanging over the market possible repercussions in other countries began to have an unsettling influence today.

Advance in the Swedish bank rate to 6 per cent, and heaviness of Scandinavian currencies, led to a feeling that the gold standard may be abandoned elsewhere than London.

In the meantime, the added responsibilities upon New York as the world's chief money center were reflected in an abrupt stiffening of the money market.

There was widespread expectation that the New York Federal Reserve Bank will increase its rediscount rate from the extremely low level of 1½ per cent possibly to 2 per cent. This would not generally be viewed in Wall st. as an adverse development, for many bankers have regarded the 1½ per cent rate as largely artificial, reflecting little save the stagnant condition of capital.

An increase in the rediscount rate based upon revived demand commercial for funds at home, however, would be more encouraging than an upturn reflecting increased foreign requirements.

The rate for bankers' acceptances, which pushed up ⅛ of one per cent yesterday gained another ⅛ of one per cent today.

Time money, which has recently been nominally quoted at 1¼ to 2 per cent—there has been virtually no demand—was nominally quoted at 3 for all maturities today.

Call money was firm at 1½ per cent, with no funds available at concessions in the outside market.

SAFETY RAZOR BUSINESS UP

New York, Sept. 24—Decided improvement is taking place in business of the American Safety Razor Corp. in the current month over previous months of the third quarter, according to official sources.

"There has been a tremendous pickup in September over both July and August," it is said, "and it is likely that this betterment will be continued in view of the distribution and sale of both blades and razors."

Stocks Buoyant in London Transactions

London, Sept. 24 (AP)—The stock market closed with industrials, mines and transatlantic favorites buoyant and foreign bonds and rails steady, but British funds were reactionary due to the unfavorable movement of sterling.

Paris—Trading on the Bourse developed into a general bull movement which began with heavy domestic and foreign buying, especially in internationally quoted stocks.

Latvia Keeps Pound, Esthonia Drops It

London, Sept. 24 (INS)—The Esthonian government today abandoned the pound sterling as official "cover" for its paper money, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Riga. Latvia has decided to retain the pound for the present, as sale of the existing holdings would involve too great a loss.

General Advance Is Made in Bond Mart

New York, Sept. 24—The bond market made a general advance in more active trading today. Individual gains were not so sensational in their size as yesterday but the upward trend was unmistakable and the gains were much larger than is customary in normal times.

But, of course, second marriages should naturally last longer—It's so easy to become disillusioned about divorce.

CALL TO ARMS

This picture shows the Mussolini method of dealing with immodest bathers. One strong man can do more than words in taking these hussies, two at a time, whirling them around until they are giddy and sending them home to their husbands and little ones. We want volunteers to join in this work. Besides, it will teach you to be an adagio dancer.

WHEELER FOR HEARST PLAN

Universal Service

New York, Sept. 24—Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D.) of Montana, sailing today for Europe, announced his support of the $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan plan.

Senator Wheeler also predicted Governor Roosevelt would be nominated Democratic candidate for President on the first ballot. The senator, who came out in favor of world bimetallism, departed last night on the United States liner George Washington to attend sessions of the International Parliamentary Union at Bucharest.

Speaking of the plan for a five-billion issue, he said:

"Something must be done to raise revenue, either by a bond issue or by taxation. The government must assist in feeding the farmers and others, establish a dole, or appropriate money.

"Although I prefer a system of taxation, I doubt taxation could be levied equitably at the present time or would be successful otherwise. I am not in favor of a sales tax on necessaries. I do not think there is any doubt that the prosperity loan would stimulate business and aid in bringing back prosperity."

METAL USED FOR FURNITURE

Metal in everything for the household.

Metal in art.

Metal in all its forms takes up about 100,000 feet of floor space at the 13th annual metal exposition and congress at Commonwealth Pier.

A metal moulding made in a few seconds as you watch it go into the furnace, to come out a small elephant, is one of the features. Use of the X-ray to detect flaws in metal is another of the exhibits.

A reproduction of the machine which makes the world's largest forging, weighing 134 tons finished and 234 tons ingot, is another feature.

Metal chairs, metal tables, metal sinks, and metal kitchen equipment of all kinds are shown.

Every metal coin in use in the country is on display.

Of Governor Roosevelt, Wheeler said:

"I believe Mr. Roosevelt will be nominated for President on the first ballot. In Western states I have visited the sentiment in his favor is strong. I found it strong in Arizona, New Mexico, California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada and South Dakota."

X-RAY

Examination, consultation and trial treatment absolutely free to all who call before Sept. 27th. The wonderful power of the X-ray and mercury quartz light treatment is accomplishing wonders in diseases of every description. No matter what your disease may be, remember Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., fulfills the above offer.

PLEURISY

Mrs. M. S. Colbath, West Enfield, Maine, says:—"I do not wish to see the doctor today, I am well. I brought the doctor a patient that I hope he will be as successful with as he was with me. When I came to Dr. Walsh for treatment in April, 1929, I suffered with severe pains in my chest. I was anaemic, had lost weight and felt all run down in health. My reason for going to Dr. Walsh with my trouble was because I had read of his success in the treatment of others who suffered as I did. I make this statement so that others who suffer as I did may profit by my experience and get well through the skillful treatment of Dr. Walsh."

(Signed) Mrs. M. S. Colbath.

Some Good Signs

Labelling Our Products

Bay State farm products quality signs are gradually appearing on the roadside stands. The other States are going in for it.

These signs are issued by the marketing officials of the six States.

They indicate that the stand owner is marketing local farm products, either grown by him or bought from local producers.

Also, that his stand meets the State's requirements of neatness, cleanliness and good order.

New England apple-growers have decided to grade their apples uniformly and market them co-operatively.

Vermont has adopted a uniform brand to denote its famous turkeys.

These are good signs. Our farmers have realized at last they cannot stand apart from each other in aloofish independence. They take a page from the successful book of the California grape-growers, Florida citrus fruit-raisers, Minnesota and Wisconsin dairyists.

Our farming industry is more important to us than we have been prone to recognize in this era of industrial activity.

These "gentlemen of the soil" are among our biggest consumers of machinery and tools, autos and accessories, building materials, clothing, leather and wire products.

When they determine, by co-operation, to be successful, the rest of New England can look to better times for all.

Wise Buying Counsel

Your Money Brings Big Values

"It's a Good Time to Buy Wisely."

That is the caption over an article by Charles F. Donahoe in the current issue of Telephone Topics, house organ of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company.

Good advice. Let's read some extracts from the article:

"Thrift means judicious saving, but it means judicious buying as well.

"Present prices are low. Necessaries and luxuries alike are cheaper than they have been in years—cheaper, perhaps, than they will be in years soon to come.

"More than ever, under such circumstances, judicious buying is practical thrift.

"For those of us who have steady employment, who have cash available either from current income or from savings not ear-marked for some special future need, this is a rare opportunity to do both one's self and one's neighbor a good turn.

"Every dollar that goes now for repairs and improvements about one's home—every dollar that goes now to stock up on clothing—every dollar that may be wisely spared now for comforts of one's desire and luxuries of one's dreams—not only buys extra value for you and me, but adds power and rhythm to the wheels of industry now beginning to resume speed."

Real estate, building materials, clothing, up and down the line, the commodities we need could never be bought to better advantage.

You could never make a dollar do more work for you than you can today.

A Note From John Shea

A Sweet Note in a Sour Medley

John T. Shea, now Superintendent of the Cambridge Home for Aged and Infirm, was one of the great temperance orators in those glorious days before prohibition when the cause of true temperance was making remarkable progress through the simple process of education.

He sends to this newspaper a brief letter. Note its kindly, human tone:

"In those days we strove for the salvation of the children, which ensured contented days for the parents.

"We battled to save the parents, thus assuring happier days for the tots and more successful careers for the sons and daughters.

"Today it pleases me to bring cheer to those passing the sunset of their lives in the greatest municipal home in the world, in Cambridge, the first city to give its finest location to her innocent victims of misfortune."

What an interesting contrast to the perpetual scoldings the public of today receive from those long-nosed, stern-visaged viragos, vainly attempting to force prohibition down the unwilling throat of the country!

League Court Justice

International justice suffers from two effects in the World Court of the League of Nations—racial sympathies and selfish political interests.

Both faults, in the opinion of the Detroit Free Press, were manifested in the recent decision against the Austro-German customs union. The Free Press said editorially:

"The eight judges who held the proposed customs union to be illegal, with respect to the Geneva protocol of 1922, were those representing France, Spain, and Italy, Cuba, Salvador and Colombia, and Poland and Rumania, two of France's allies.

"The six judges who joined the German judge in finding nothing illegal in the proposed union were those representing the United States, Great Britain, China, Japan, Belgium and the Netherlands. Thus the line, with the exception of Belgium, was clearly drawn between France and her political and racial allies, and the non-Latinic members of the Court.

"A decision so suspiciously political in the first case of major importance coming before the World Court is bound to make even the most ardent champions of that institution in this country, stop, look and listen before crossing the tracks into its exalted precincts."

Dogging Their Footsteps

The "In-Bad Boys" resemble Tam o' Shanter in this heart-rending picture, for, see, a "big black fiend doth tread them close behind," and what a fright it gives them!

They seem to be going SOMEWHERE. Let them go—Old Man Prohibition and Mr. Bonehead Tariff together—and take their gaunt companion with them. The sooner the better for everybody.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Don't Be a Swipe Box!

EVER HEAR of a swipe box? Most commercial artists use them. In these boxes they accumulate hundreds of clipped illustrations—fine drawings by talented men of animals, landscapes, people, buildings, machinery. Then, when the call comes for a certain picture, they do not need to hire a model or spend hours sketching. They simply go through their swipe box, select a drawing and copy that bit of it which they wish to use.

Elsie Robinson

The result is a clever composition, mechanically perfect, but there's something wrong. It's pretty—even snappy—but it doesn't mean anything. There is no feeling in it, nor any power to move feeling in you. You've seen scrawls by little youngsters that seemed more REAL than this. Synthetic stuff—like near beer "it hasn't the authority."

You've seen people like that. Clever people, with a smart line of chatter . . . or gushing people, all full of sweet platitudes . . . or peevish people, who can tell you what's wrong with everything—yet they all fail to register. Like the commercial drawings, there's something missing. Nothing that they say seems REAL. And it isn't real. Those people are just walking swipe boxes, filled with notions, prejudices, ideas and wise-cracks which they've gathered here and there—from some magazine article, over the radio, on the street car or down at the office. They could talk for a year and never once voice one original opinion. Then they wonder why they're not Big Shots. They wonder why people do not listen to them with awe and admiration—

The answer's plain enough. No opinion has "any authority" unless you dig it out for yourself, from your own experience and observation. Swipe-box ideas never pack a wallop. They may help you act smart, but they will never help you live big.

AND SOME DAY, WHEN YOU MOST NEED THEIR HELP, THEY WILL FAIL YOU.

For you can bet on this, stranger. You may make quite an impression as a party with a swipe-box brain—BUT SOONER OR LATER LIFE WILL CALL YOUR BLUFF. Some day you will come up against a crisis which will force you to prove where you stand. And if you don't know where you stand . . . if you've just been standing where the scenery looked prettiest . . . you're certainly in for a spell of grief.

And that's one of the things that ails America today. Once Americans were shrewd and original thinkers. They had to be. Pioneer folk had to do their own thinking, just as they had to do their own cooking, building, sewing, planting. Your grandpa, wrangling a living out of stubborn soil in endless, lonely hours, made up his own mind. He had one opinion where you have a million — BUT THAT OPINION MEANT SOMETHING. He had built it out of his own strenght and weakness, measured it to his own capacity, fitted it to his own needs. It might be slightly cockeyed, nevertheless it had power because it was HIS REAL OPINION, not a borrowed bunch of words. He could back it with all he had. He could live by that opinion. He could, and often did, die by it.

But, for the last twenty years, AMERICA HAS BEEN LIVING ON CANNED INTELLIGENCE. We no longer wrangle for our opinions—we just listen in. As a consequence, we have no real convictions, we rarely think. So, when it comes to a pinch, most anyone can make a fool of us. AND MOST EVERYONE IS.

THINK! THINK FOR YOURSELF! Don't accept anyone else's opinion may sound. Make up your how clever or virile or virtuous that opinion may sound. Make up your own opinion. Th. result may not be very new or very smart but it will be REAL and you can bank on it. ONE ORIGINAL OPINION, EVEN THOUGH IT BE COCKEYED, WILL ENRICH YOUR LIFE MORE THAN A THOUSAND SWIPED SENTIMENTS.

New York Day by Day

An "Humble Gesture"

NEW YORK, Sept. 24—The most complete record of the World War and perhaps the most voluminous historical edition ever published has just been turned over to the New York Historical Society. It is in 100 volumes, comprising more than 30,000 clippings from that many newspapers over the world.

The compilation is the quixotic effort of a modest and comparatively obscure historian named Otto Spengler. He spent three years at work on the record in a dingy basement on lower Third ave. It is estimated the cost in labor and time was around $75,000.

During spare time, night and day, Spengler perused papers for what he calls "a humble gesture of posterity." At various times ten assistants were paid out of his own pocket to assist him. After he finished his job he set about for capital to have them bound.

For months he appealed in person and by letter to various philanthropists. But seldom received the courtesy of a reply. About a year ago he received word that the building in which the clippings were stored was to be torn down.

He had only a few weeks to make disposition of his collection or they would be carted to a city dump and burned. Finally a letter to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., directed him to the historical society and after investigation Rockefeller furnished $30,000 for the binding.

The only provision was that the completed work should become the property of the historical society. The binding was done in black cloth and the compiler—as a reward for his long and pains taking task—has been made a life member of the historical society.

* * *

My interest in Otto Spengler—whom I never met—dates back to early days in the big city. He was then as now a self-effacing humanitarian. So far as I know the first time my name ever appeared in a New York newspaper, a clipping in a cheap yellow envelope was sent to me by him.

* * *

Wherever Homer Croy roams he registers from Marysville, Missouri. And there are many illustrious who do not forget their birthplace in globe trotting. On a hotel register in Indianapolis, Ind., once the name above mine was "C. M. Schwab, Loreto, Pa." Sinclair Lewis in European hotels places "Sauk Center, Wis." after his name and Irvin Cobb has registered from Paducah since leaving there 30 years ago. Tommy Millard, who has spent most of his life in Shanghai and other far away places always registers at the Lambs in New York from Phelps County, Mo. And H. T. Webster exhibits the same pride in his native Tomahawk, Wis.

* * *

Up to date 234 letters, post-cards and ringed clippings have poured in about a reference in this column to the white meat of a duck at La Tour d'Argent in Paris. There is no white meat to a duck. Anyway it looked as though it might be white. But in any event, hooters have chivvied me to considerable proportions. Just now sitting on a dime I could not make my toes touch the floor.

* * *

O, yes, a postcard from Hollywood contains breathless tidings that "tossing a binge" means giving a party. Yet the saddest news from cinemaland was in a letter from a director. In a film he is now shooting are two former stars of the silent screen serving as extras. But charitably disguised so no one will recognize them. You'd be surprised who they are, too.

* * *

Another Lou Holtz story is of the Broadway stew, told by his doctor after his release from Believue that he would have to quit drinking for good. "As it is," said the doctor, "bad booze has taken the cost entirely off your stomach."

"O, K.," said the victim already slightly mackereled. "I'll just let it skim along in its shirt sleeves."

Just Folks

Choice

Life never shouts: "Do this! do that!"
I think it doesn't care
What road we take, what choice we make,
What sort of garb we wear.
Who will not wisdom work to learn
Gets only what the fools can earn.

The things we lose, the things we gain
On choice alone depend.
Who wills to win the easy way
Finds hardship at the end.
Who fears to risk a steep ascent
Must with the valley be content.

Though fortunes change with circumstance
And bodily distress,
The normal man must shape and plan
And build his own success.
And he must say how far he'll go
To claim the joys he wants to know.

We hold our destiny in hand
At least to this extent,
That all may say what price we'll pay
For goals within our bent.
And man from life takes nothing more
Than he has had the courage for.

Life makes no gifts to great or low.
Its joys are on display.
How much we'll learn, how much we'll earn
Is left to us to say.
And where at last our progress ends
Upon our strength of will depends.

Problems of Prohibition

By BRAND WHITLOCK

(From "The Little Green Shutter," by Brand Whitlock. Published by D. Appleton & Co.)

(Copyright, by Brand Whitlock, 1931.)

WE undertake to prevent the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. We can't, as a matter of fact, prevent the sale of it; but even if we could, we can never prevent the manufacture of it, for nature herself is in the business of manufacturing it under a law of her own which we are powerless to amend or repeal. And that is the law of chemistry by which sugar, under certain conditions, ferments and turns into alcohol.

There is no way to stop sugar doing this. All the zeal of moralists and reformers; and all the amendments that may be added to the Constitution; and all the statutes that may be enacted by Legislatures; and all the decisions that may be handed down by the courts, can never abrogate this inexorable and remorseless law. Sugar will keep right on turning into alcohol as long as the world lasts, and so long as its does, men will drink it, and some of them, at least, will get drunk.

Men do not drink because they are wicked. They drink because drinking enables them to escape temporarily from reality. They drink for the same reason that a servant-girl goes to the cinema; or the tired businessman reads detective stories; or the weary scholar works a crossword puzzle, or a Chinaman smokes opium,, or an East Indian eats hasheesh. It helps them to forget; it takes them out of themselves, and transports them for a little while, at least, to a blissful realm of illusion and romance.

We say "drunk as a lord," not because lords are habitually drunk, but because drink has the magical power to make a man feel like a lord. The psychologist has discovered this same truth, and William James says:

"The sway of alcohol over mankind is unquestionably due to its power to stimulate the mystical faculties of human nature, usually crushed to earth by the cold facts and dry criticisms of the sober hour. Sobriety diminishes, discriminates, and says No; drunkenness expands, unites, and says Yes. It is in fact the great exciter of the yes function in man. It brings its votary from the chill periphery of things to the radient core. It makes him for the moment one with truth. Not through mere perversity do men run after it.

"To the poor and unlettered it stands in the place of symphony concerts and of literature; and it is a part of life that whiffs and gleams of something that we immediately recognize as excellent should be vouchsafed to so many of us only in the fleeing earlier phase of what in its totality is an degrading a poison. The drunken consciousness is one bit of the mystic consciousness, and our total opinion of it must find its place in our opinion of that large whole."

And so, since alcohol is here, and here to stay, the wisest thing to do about it is to find out the most satisfactory terms on which we can live with it, and reduce its ill effects to a minimum. No unprejudiced person, I fancy, will pretend that the present method does this, and we shall never make any progress or have any peace until we change it.

One of the unfortunate results of the present situation is that where we had only one problem before prohibition we now have two. We have the old problem of the saloon and intemperance, and we have prohibition.

The only practical solution of the problem of intemperance lies where it has always lain, in the old, slow, tedious process of education and development of character.

The solution of the other problem, of both problems indeed, lies in the principle of state rights and local self-government. This principle was working fairly well, and it was under its operation and its name that the Anti-Saloon League won its only real and permanent victories. Under it many towns, counties and even states, where public opinion was overwhelmingly in favor of the anti-liquor laws, were free not only of saloons but of many of the evils of intemperance.

The out and out prohibitionists complained, it is true, that the system was not ideal because, under the decision of the Supreme Court in the original package case, it could not interfere with interstate commerce, and prevent the shipping of alcohol into dry territory. And it was to meet this objection that Congress enacted statutes that deprived such shipments of federal protection. Not that this satisfied them; far from it.

National prohibition itself could not satisfy them long; they must have international prohibition. Their ideal was still unrealized, because alcohol was shipped into the country from abroad, and that it was necessary to alter international law, and load the dice in our favor, and obtain the special privilege of the twelve-mile limit at sea, and that sort of thing.

At any rate, under the old system the conflict of opinion and interest between Main street and Broadway, between provincial and metropolitan ideas of morals and manners which had gone on for so many years, was fortunately local, and confined within the limits of each state, with the State Legislature as its arena. So long as the problem was left to local experiment there was some chance of finding a reasonable or approximate solution. Indeed, the cause of temperance was growing all the while—a fact that made it easier, no doubt, for the prohibitionists to push their measures to extremes, since men who no longer drank became indifferent and paid no attention to what was going on.

At all events, the problem was in a fair way of being solved, so far as it ever can be solved. But when in headlong impatience it was precipitately transferred to the national arena, it became more difficult of solution because other and more important issues were raised.

To begin with, an arbitrary and inflexible police regulation had been jammed into the Constitution, the equilibrium of government had been disturbed, its original theory had been altered, and new, unfamiliar and unpopular agencies had to be devised to put the new theory in operation.

Each change, in order to be effective, demanded another and more radical change, so that logically, in the long run, the process might conceivably not come to an end until the state governments had been overthrown and the governors superseded by prefects appointed by the President.
